SENATE ADOPTS DEMOCRATIC TAX MEASURE AS COALITION FORCES ROUT G. O. P. REGULARS

Slash in Water Rates Voted by City Council

COUNCIL'S ACTION TO FORCE CHANGES IN FINANCE SHEET

Mayor Sims Makes Appeal for Rearrangement of Funds in Order To Keep City Schools Open.

WARM DEBATE WAGED ON WATER RATE CUT

Mayor's Veto of Measure Reinstating Former Employees on Pension List, Overridden.

Cutting water rates $200,000 against recommendation of the majority of the finance committee and "passing the buck" to the finance committee to comply with an appeal from Mayor Sims to rearrange city finances to avert closing public schools in September, city council at its first May session Monday postponed until Thursday all routine business after debate on the water rate question had prolonged the session until nearly 6 o'clock.

Adoption of the water rate cut proposed by Alderman I. N. Ragdale, chairman of the water committee, was voted 25 to 8 after opponents of the cut, led by Alderman J. R. Bachman, chairman of the finance committee; Alderman Jesse W. Armistead and Alderman W. B. Hartsfield had forced three recorded "yea and nay" votes in an effort to delay action and have the question referred back to the finance committee.

A resolution by Councilman Harry York "requesting" that "the various industries such as ice manufacturers" restore their former rates in consideration of the lower water rate was adopted by council after the Ragdale water schedule had been voted.

City Pensioners Win.
Council Monday overrode Mayor Walter Sims' veto of measures reinstating 10 former city employees on the pension list, making them eligible to receive pension money which they would have drawn had they not been cut off by the mayor in January.

Pensioners reinstated were W. H. Cook, R. E. Little, W. P. Ivins, M. J. Smith, William Watkins, Joe Abernathy, J. W. Dickson, W. H. Burrell, J. C. Martin and J. M. Glose.

The mayor explained his veto in a message informing council that each of the 10 men is self supporting, most of them having recovered completely from injuries for which they were pensioned and that some of them are

Atlanta Mothers Guests Monday Of Constitution

Special Performance in Their Honor May 12 at the Howard Theater.

BY RALPH T. JONES.

Mothers of Atlanta—Once again, as it did one year ago, The Constitution has arranged to pay a special, personal tribute to you all, on the occasion of "Mother's Day," which, as you all know, comes this year on Sunday next, May 11.

The day following, Monday, promptly at noon, The Constitution will give a special performance at the Howard theater to which every Atlanta mother is invited, as a guest of this paper.

At the end of this little story, there is printed a coupon. All each mother in the city has to do is to clip out that coupon and, for the noon performance on Monday, May 12, present it at the door of the Howard theater, and she will need no other admission.

The program of that performance has been specially arranged for mothers. There will be, of course, the great feature picture of the week, it is the latest Paramount release, "The Breaking Point," and is described as one of the half dozen great picture dramas of the year. Then there will be the other pictures—the news reels, the comedies, etc. The Howard orchestra, under the direction of Conductor Buel B. Risinger, will render special music. There will be a vocal solo, sung by one of Atlanta's best-known singers. The song will be that classic of motherhood, Kipling's "Mother O' Mine."

The Constitution hopes every mother in Atlanta will accept this invitation. There is, however, a special

Daughter-in-Law Of Robert E. Lee Dies of Illness

Mrs. Mary Tabb Bolling Lee Succumbs in Richmond Monday Night.

Richmond, Va., May 5.—Mrs. Mary Tabb Bolling Lee, daughter-in-law of General Robert E. Lee, who has been ill in Richmond several days died here tonight at 10:25.

Funeral services will be held here tomorrow at St. Paul's Episcopal church. Rev. Beverly D. Tucker, Jr., D. D., will conduct the services, assisted by Rev. G. F. Eiland. The funeral arrangements have not yet been completed but the body will be taken to Lexington, Va., for interment in the mausoleum under Lee chapel on the campus of Washington and Lee university.

WESTERN FARMERS THREATENING BOLT OF G. O. P. TICKET

Passage of Relief Legislation by Congress and Signing by Coolidge Is Price of Support.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.
Washington, May 5.—The feeling of the farmers and the farm organizations that they are being "put upon" by other interests was never stronger in Washington than it is today. Correspondingly, their demands for specific legislation and their threats to take a political revenge if they do not get it were never more specific, or more truculent, than in the present week.

Their threats take the form of saying they will defeat Coolidge and the republican ticket if their legislation is not passed by congress and signed by the president. They say they can and will do this without the device of a third ticket, but they add that, in the event of the failure of their legislation, they will have a third ticket. The writer has spent several days with the spokesman of the farmers, and believes that the likelihood of a third ticket is rather stronger today than at any time since the plan was first put forward.

Would Help Democrats.
At the same time, it must be remembered that the only effect a third ticket can have is to make the election of the democratic presidential candidate more probable; and after the democratic presidential nomination is made, the nature of it may chill the ardor of those who are now zealous for a third ticket. If the democratic nominee should be McAdoo or even Ralston, doubtless the farmers would take pleasure in promoting his legislation as against Coolidge.

But if the democratic nominee should be Governor Smith, of New York, for example, or some other conservative, the farmers might fail to find any incentive for helping him into the white house as against Coolidge. The democrats, whoever their candidate is, will do what they can to further a third ticket. In fact, the democrats have already been taking well-planned steps to promote the third party idea.

The outcome hangs chiefly on the farmers. Their particular mood of resentment just now is caused, first,

ENGINEER URGES NEED OF REVISION OF TRAFFIC LAWS

John A. Beeler Makes Preliminary Report to Special Committee Appointed by City Council.

CHANGES IN PARKING REGULATIONS SOUGHT

More Uniform Spacing of Car Stops and More Safety-Isle Loading Platforms Declared Needed.

More rigid enforcement of existing traffic ordinances and prohibition of parking in the "neck of the bottle" on Peachtree street between Ellis and Luckie streets were recommended by John A. Beeler, traffic engineer, working under the special council traffic committee, in a preliminary report on its survey of local traffic conditions made public Monday by Alderman J. R. Bachman, chairman.

Unusual density of population in Atlanta, with population within the city limits estimated at 240,000 and population of the Atlanta district estimated at 310,000, was blamed for the acuteness of traffic problems here.

Changes Recommended.
The engineer recommended five general changes in methods of street car operation, including relocation and more uniform spacing of car stops; permitting two street cars to receive and discharge passengers at the same time at regular car stops; installing raised safety isle loading platforms, such as that at Five Points, at all heavy traffic points; employment of additional street collectors at heavy loading points to enable passengers to get on both at front and rear of cars; giving street cars precedence over other traffic, and coordinating all other traffic with movement of street cars.

The special committee is composed of Alderman J. R. Bachman, Alderman J. L. McLeander, Councilman J. A. Beall, W. C. Jenkins and James L. Wells. It is to use the report as a basis for making recommendations to council on the power company's petition for more favorable operating conditions, higher cash fare, transfer fee, relief from paving assessments, reduction of gross receipts taxes, elimination of jitneys from streets on which trolleys operate and rearrangement of routes and schedules.

Immediate Adoption Urged.
Recommendations in the report Monday were urged for immediate adoption "as first aid in minimizing delays and bringing about smoother and freer movements of traffic," it was stated. They do not constitute a

100 PER CENT NAVY IDEAL OF WILBUR

New Secretary Wants Sea Force Equal in Every Respect of Any Power on Land or Sea.

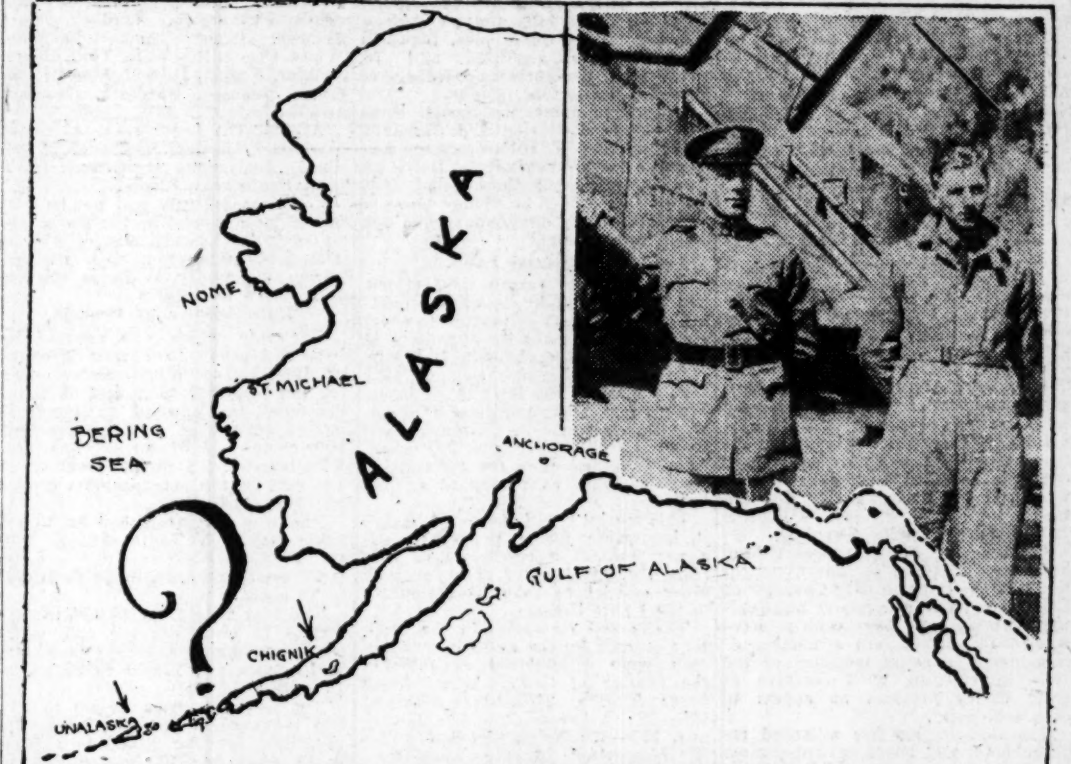

Washington, May 5.—Declaration that he stood for an American navy not only equal to any other, but a "dominating" one "along lines not restricted by mutual agreement," was made in an address here today by Secretary Wilbur before the republican women of the District of Columbia.

"I stand absolutely for a 100 per cent navy, the equal, at least, in every respect of any power on land or sea," Secretary Wilbur declared. "That is my personal position, and I believe it should be the attitude of the government and the mission of the department. Although I say at least 100 per cent equality, I see no reason why we should not undertake also to advance our navy along lines not restricted by mutual agreement, so that we will again be in a dominating situation, and can again secure mutual limitations on all activities along lines at present unrestricted by any treaty."

The secretary's declaration of his personal position with respect to the question of the strength that should be maintained for the navy in relation to other auxiliary craft upon which there exists no treaty limitation as to numbers any power may possess, was viewed as particularly significant, since the report of Admiral Con-

Where Missing World Fliers Vanished

Major Frederick L. Martin (left) with his mechanic, Sergeant Alva Harvey, in front of their plane, and a map of Alaska showing where the commander of the round-the-world flight of the U. S. army is missing.

BY EVAN J. DAVID.
(Copyright by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Chignik, Alaska, May 5.—(On Board the United States Coast Guard Cutter Alagonquin.)—We have not despaired of finding Major Frederick L. Martin, commander of the round-the-world flight and his mechanic, Alva Harvey. I received definite information today from S. R. U. Sachendro, a white trader on the north side of Chignik lagoon, that he had seen Major Martin at 11 a. m. on April 30, flying up the lake in the direction of Bering sea.

I also learned that before leaving Chignik the world fliers were provided with a large package of sandwiches and thermos bottles filled with hot coffee by Mrs. James Osmund, wife of the cannery owner at Chignik, at whose home they stayed. Mrs. Osmund is a resident of Astoria, Ore., and comes north each spring with her husband.

This food, in addition to their regular rations, may well be the means of saving their lives. From Sachendro's statement it is evident that Major Martin changed his plans to

Unalakleet while in the air, due to the snowstorm. Instead of flying from Chignik southwest he turned his ship due north and headed into the 25-mile wind blowing from the northwest in the hope of finding the wind on his right hand after he reached the Bering sea side of the peninsula. The drift of his plane would then be continually towards the land and not away from it, as would have been the case had he flown south.

This is the most hopeful news up to date, for it gives us a definite locality to search for the world fliers and eliminates the greatest fear of Captain Fabbette, of the Alagonquin, the major and his mechanic had been blown out into the mid-Pacific. The Indians sent out from Chignik with a dog team are now nearing Unalakleet lake, where it is hoped that Major Martin landed his plane and is there at the village of Unalakleet or waiting for help at the lake. If they do not find him there they have been instructed to proceed as far as Bering sea. They are equipped with first aid.

The information as to whether or not the plane passed over Unalakleet will do much to establish the place where the world fliers went down, for if they do not reach that village it is reasonable to believe that they crashed somewhere in the area between Chignik lake, where they were last seen by Sachendro, and the Bering sea at Seal islands. It will take 48 hours for the Indians to mush back from the Bering sea to Chignik with the information.

Round-the-world squadron, minus Major Martin's plane, was at Alaska Island in the Aleutians, preparing to depart tomorrow for Attu Island, 530 miles from Alaska and the last stop scheduled in American territory.

The coast guard cutter Haida, according to the latest reports received, was speeding to Alaska to see fliers there hop-off and the United States fisheries patrol boat Eider was due at Attu tomorrow.

EMERGENCY CORPS PLANNED TO WAR ON TAX DODGERS

Less Than Half of Atlanta's School Patrons Are Listed for Taxation, Declares Investigator.

INTERCIVIC COUNCIL PRESENTS FIGURES

Committee To Be Named To Work With Tax Authorities on Solution of Problem.

Immediate employment of an emergency corps of tax investigators will be urged on city council by Alderman W. B. Hartsfield, chairman of the tax committee, he announced Monday after a session of the Atlanta intercivic council at which figures were revealed showing that less than half of the patrons of the public schools are listed for taxation on the city tax digest.

The emergency corps is proposed to help assessors in a general roundup of tax dodgers this year while a committee of citizens from the Atlanta intercivic council works with taxing authorities to develop a permanent solution for the tax evasion problem.

Committee Authorized.

Appointment of the committee was authorized by the council at a luncheon Monday after F. F. Talley, high school teacher working as special investigator for the organization, had submitted a partial report showing that of 5,032 heads of families represented by enrollment in six of more than 50 Atlanta schools, 2,550 were not listed on the tax books at all.

Mr. Talley told the council that he had checked 1924 school enrollment against 1923 tax digests and that newcomers to the city who would go on the 1924 tax books might make a difference of 15 per cent in the proportion of tax dodgers whose children are being educated at public expense.

Between 40 and 50 per cent of all school patrons, he said, are paying nothing toward cost of the public school system.

One out of every three families represented in the schools he investigated have two children in the elementary grades who are receiving free text books at public expense in addition to free tuition.

Talley Engaged for Work.

Arthur Brooks acted as chairman at the luncheon-meeting and explained that the intercivic council last month had authorized an investigation of the local tax evasion situation. He said that F. F. Talley, member of the Boys' High faculty, had been retained for the work.

He declared that the council was appalled at the amount of tax dodging in Atlanta and intended to do it, even if the members had to do the work themselves.

J. C. Little, city tax assessor, who

Atlanta Leading Southern States In Auto Thefts

Nearly Twice as Many Cars Disappear Here as in Any of Eight States.

Nearly twice as many automobiles were stolen in Atlanta during the six months ending March 30 as in any one of the eight southern states, according to reports made public Tuesday by the Automobile Underwriters' Detective Bureau.

The report showed that 422 cars were stolen in Atlanta during the six months, and a total of 628 were stolen in Georgia, more than twice the total of any one of the other states included in the report.

Florida Is Next.

Florida, with 276 auto thefts, is next to Georgia, while New Orleans trails Atlanta with 134 thefts. Richmond reported 16 thefts, Jacksonville 62, Birmingham 72, Little Rock 7, Norfolk 5 and other large southern cities with correspondingly low records.

New Orleans, a city much larger than Atlanta, reported only 134 thefts

WHOLE COMMITTEE DEFINITELY KILLS MELLON SCHEDULE

Smoot Announces He Will Call for Vote on Rates. When Bill Is Up in Open Session.

INSURGENT, DEMOCRAT COALITION VICTORIOUS

Minority Surtax Plan Adopted by Vote of 43 to 40—Normal Income Rates, 44 to 37.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, May 5.—Riding to victory with the aid of republican insurgents, democrats in the senate have put over their entire income tax rate program, including both normal and surtax schedules.

The surtax schedule, which sets a maximum of 40 per cent, beginning at $500,000, was adopted by the senate Monday afternoon by a vote of 43 to 40, despite the defection of two democrats, Bruce, of Maryland, and Edwards, of New Jersey.

The normal rate schedule, reducing present rates below $8,000 exactly in half, was adopted by a larger margin, 44 to 37. On this vote, Bruce and Edwards again deserted their party ranks.

The vote came as a surprise, Senator Simmons, introducing the democratic schedules as an amendment, which was followed by the roll call. Senator Smoot, Utah, announced he would call for a vote on the rate schedules when the senate considers the bill in open session. The action Monday was taken by the senate sitting as a committee of the whole.

Death of Mellon Rates.

The democratic victory Monday sounds the death knell of the Mellon rates. All that Smoot and other republican leaders hope to gain by another vote is a compromise, which they will try to effect meanwhile.

The democrats corralled seven republican votes on each amendment, Brookhart, Frasier, Howell, Johnson of California, Ladd, Norbeck and Norris, voting for their surtax schedule. Howell was not present on the second vote, but Capper, of Kansas, switched over and stood with the democrats.

Johnson, of Minnesota, farmer-labor member, joined the democrats in both votes, while Shipstead voted with them on the normal rates. He was absent when the surtax vote was taken.

Two Democrats Paired.

Bayard, democrat, of Delaware, was paired against both amendments, while Trammell, of Florida, democrat, was paired against the party surtax schedule, which was unexpected.

Jones, of Washington, republican, declined to vote on the normal tax amendment, declaring with a smile that he was "personally interested in the result."

The surtax schedule adopted Monday begins with a one per cent rate at $10,000, and graduates upward to 40 per cent on incomes of $500,000 and above. This compares with a scale having a maximum of 37 1-2 per cent, beginning at $200,000, which was voted by the house, and the Mellon rate with its 25 per cent maximum for incomes of $100,000 and over, which was placed in the bill by the senate finance committee after the house had rejected it by a large vote.

No Attempt to Block Vote.

Under the democratic normal rates, the tax is 2 per cent on incomes up to $4,000, 4 per cent between $4,000 and $8,000, and 6 per cent above. The only difference in this scale and the one in the house bill is between $4,000 and $8,000, where the rate is 5 per cent instead of 4. The Mellon plan provided 3 per cent up to $4,000 and 6 per cent above, a reduction from 4 per cent and 8 per cent respectively as at present.

Though the vote came unexpectedly Monday, there was no attempt by republicans to stave it off. They have realized that the Mellon rates would be defeated, and accepted the test on the democratic program which had to come sooner or later.

All the efforts of Senator Smoot will now be directed toward building up a compromise movement. When the senate dissolves as a committee of the whole, the method for considering detailed legislation, and goes into regular session, Smoot will offer his compromise on both surtaxes and normal taxes. He will offer one surtax rate after another, raising the rate gradually, hoping to reach agreement under the 40 per cent maximum adopted Monday.

Night Session Tuesday.

At that time he is expected to attempt to insert the Mellon normal rates into the bill. Between now and that time, Smoot and other republican leaders will work for a compromise. However, because of the determination of the democrats to fix as high a surtax rate as possible, it is not likely that they can be won over. It was the last minute switch of the house insurgents which prevented the democratic surtax rate from enactment, though they stood firm on the normal rates in the democratic plan.

The senate has but few provisions of the bill left for consideration, those covering corporation taxes, gift taxes, inheritance taxes and some portions of the section dealing with the board of tax appeals have not been completed. Due to the rapid disposition of the rate schedules, which it was thought would take two or three days, it is likely that the proposed night session will be called off. They were scheduled to begin Tuesday night.

TAX RATE PLANS ARE COMPARED

Washington, May 5.—A comparison of the various income tax rate schedules before congress this session with the Simmons plan approved by the senate today follows:

SIMMONS PLAN.
Normal rates: Two per cent on incomes of $4,000 and under; 4 per cent on incomes between $4,000 and $8,000; 6 per cent above $8,000.
Surtax rates: Start at 1 per cent on $10,000 and graduate up to 40 per cent on amounts in excess of $50,000.

PRESENT LAW.
Normal rates: Four per cent on incomes of $4,000 and under; 6 per cent on incomes between $4,000 and $8,000; 8 per cent above $8,000.
Surtax rates: Start at 1 per cent on $10,000 and graduate up to 50 per cent on amounts in excess of $200,000.

MELLON PLAN.
Normal rates: Three per cent on incomes under $4,000; 6 per cent above $4,000.
Surtax rates: Start at 1 per cent on $10,000 and graduate up to 25 per cent on amounts in excess of $100,000.

HOUSE PLAN.
Normal rates: Two per cent on incomes under $4,000; 5 per cent on incomes between $4,000 and $8,000, and 6 per cent above that amount.
Surtax rates: Start at 1-2 per cent at $10,000 and graduate up to 37 1-2 per cent on amounts in excess of $200,000.

four members en route as they enjoy the fishing, bathing, boating, dancing and other entertainment at Panama City. The picture will show all cars as they leave Atlanta, and, if possible, every member of the tour enjoying some feature of the week's outing.

Panama City will entertain the entire party with a whole day's boat excursion and fish dinner on the waters of St. Andrews Bay and the Gulf.

Fishing Permits Arranged.
Permits for fresh water fishing have been arranged by The Constitution and the Panama City Chamber of Commerce. The progressive and leading citizens of Bay county have formed themselves into a committee to assist members of the tour in enjoying such features of their varied program as appeal to each individual.

The Constitution has arranged reduced hotel and boarding house rates for the entire party. The rates run from $1.50 to $5 per day, American plan. It is estimated that total cost for making the trip, exclusive of transportation, should average from $25 to $50.

The following services and entertainment will be enjoyed by members of the tour without charge, other than the entrance fee.

Badges for each member of the party.
Banners for front and rear of all cars.
Free passage over the toll bridge at Columbia.
One whole day boat excursion and fish dinner on the waters of St. Andrews Bay and the Gulf.

Hotel Reservation.
Definite hotel reservations, at greatly reduced rates, both en route and at St. Andrews Bay section.
Varied refreshments and entertainment provided by the cities along the route and by Panama City.
Opportunity to appear in the movies at Loew's Grand theater.
Motoring of routes to Panama City.
An entrance fee of $5 per car, and $2.50 for each person, is asked by The Constitution. This is to cover a portion of the actual cost of arranging and conducting the tour, and to show good faith on the part of those who receive allotment of hotel reservations.
Those who do not have automobiles, or who prefer to have someone else drive are given the opportunity of securing space in cars that have already entered.
Reservations for transportation in cars ranging from Cadillac limousines to flyovers are now available. Those who desire to secure such passage should apply at The Constitution office, first floor, between 11 o'clock and 7 o'clock and between 5 o'clock and 7 o'clock. The prices charged for space in cars that have been entered vary. The arrangement for passage is left with the interested parties. The Constitution only serves to bring the two parties together.
Those who live outside of Atlanta and desire to join the party at any given point may do so, by making reservations with The Constitution in advance.

of cars, as compared to 422 in Atlanta, while Richmond and Birmingham, cities of approximately the same size as this city, reported less than one-fourth the number of thefts reported in Georgia's capital city.

Of the 828 cars stolen in Georgia 350 were recovered and 265 of the 422 stolen in Atlanta were regained by owners.

Startling Record.
These figures, showing the startling record established by auto thieves in Atlanta and Georgia, in comparison with other southern cities and states, do not include cars stolen and recovered within a few days after being stripped of accessories. The records set out are those reported to the detective bureau only. Thus officials point out these figures only show about 75 per cent of the actual number of cars stolen, taking into consideration the number recovered before reports are formally made to the Automobile Underwriters' office.

The figures cover the states of Alabama, Florida, North Carolina, Louisiana, Virginia, Arkansas, Mississippi, South Carolina and Georgia.
A total of 190 alleged thieves were brought to trial during the six months period covered by the report, with 109 convictions and an average sentence of two years plus, imposed. Only six were acquitted and 76 await trial. Sentences imposed aggregate 220 years, five months in all.

In making public the report, Manager Claude Patterson and Assistant Manager John H. Dillard, of the Automobile Underwriters' Detective Bureau, reiterated their belief that unless "something is done Georgia will become the dumping ground for stolen automobiles."

Plan Special Laws.
It is regarded certain that efforts will be made during the coming session of the Georgia legislature to enact special laws to make the operations of auto thieves more difficult. It is suggested that a registration of title for the first 800 cubic feet of water consumed, as opposed to the prevailing net charge of $1 for the first 500 cubic feet of water consumed.

The new rate from 800 to 10,000 cubic feet is 15 cents per 100, while the prevailing rate 500 to 5,000 is 20 cents and from 5,000 to 10,000 is 16 cents.

The new rate from 10,000 to 20,000 is 13 cents per 100, while the prevailing rate 10,000 to 15,000 is 15 cents and 15,000 to 20,000 is 14 cents.

The new rate from 20,000 to 30,000 is 11 cents per 100, while the prevailing rate for 20,000 to 25,000 is 14 cents and 25,000 to 30,000 is 13 cents per 100.

The new rate from 30,000 upward is 9 cents per 100, while the prevailing rate 30,000 to 35,000 is 11 cents and 35,000 upward is 10 1-2 cents per 100.

In Excess of 1923.
The rate is slightly in excess of the rate in effect during the last half of 1923, which was $1 for the first 800 feet, 12 1-2 cents per 100 up to 10,000; 12 cents per 100 up to 20,000; 11 1-4 up to 30,000; 10 1-2 up to 40,000; 10 up to 50,000; 9 1-2 up to 60,000; 9 up to 70,000 and 8 3-4 for quantities in excess of 70,000.

The increase in the amount of water allowed for the minimum charge of $1 would benefit about 12,000 people, according to the records in the waterworks department. The amount of the reduction is gradually decreased as the quantity increases because the original increases were made on a sliding scale.

All net rates quoted are subject to an additional 5 cents per 100 cubic feet if bills are not paid within 10 days and the minimum net rate is increased 25 cents if the bill is not paid within that time.

All consumers outside the city limits pay double the amount quoted for city consumers except industrial plants and colleges which pay 50 per cent more.

Johnson Gets Vacation.
Recorder George E. Johnson was granted a vacation and council voted for its member to take turns in sitting on the recorder's court bench, as has been customary in the past.

W. A. Lynch, of the third ward, and E. L. Hurling, of the ninth ward, were elected to succeed themselves as members of the Carnegie library board.

A movement to change the location of the public comfort station now maintained in a building in front of city hall was launched by Alderman I. N. Ragsdale, who obtained appointment of a committee to investigate the advisability of moving it.

"I hope that general council will be able to provide the money with which to continue the operation of the schools. I thoroughly agree with those who claim that the school department has been mismanaged and that many extravagances have been permitted in this department, but this is a matter which will have to be corrected by legislation and by changing the method of operating the school department; in the meantime, pending the change in this department, council should do all within its power to provide the necessary funds with which to keep the schools in operation.

"It was my understanding in January of this year that the increased water rates were for the purpose of relieving the school department of the financial embarrassment caused by the deficit for 1923, and for the purpose of providing funds with which to build the Girls' High school.

"By rearranging your finance sheet, provision can very easily be made for carrying on of the schools for the balance of the year without any increase in revenue, but it may be necessary to arrange for the payment of the last two months' expense as was done last year."

Alderman R. A. Gordon joined with Alderman Bachman in urging council to "husband the city's every resource to be prepared against the time when the school's resources will be exhausted and they will appeal to council to provide the money to keep them from closing."

Alderman J. L. Carpenter and Councilman Wiley Moore also spoke against reduction.

Ragsdale Supported.
Alderman Ragsdale's position was supported on the floor by Alderman W. B. Duvall, Councilman J. Allen Couch, Councilman C. J. Vaughan, Councilman Harry Gork, Councilman J. A. White, Councilman J. J. Greer and others.

The vote on adoption on the Ragsdale rate was:

For the lower rate, Aldermen Duvall, Moon, Hunter, Williamson, Councilmen Pennington, Wardlaw, Beall, Slappey, Greer, Aven, Vaughan, White, Couch, Etheridge, York, Baker, Jenkins, Knight, Russell, Cooper, Calaway, Johnson, Sudderth, Saunders and House.

Against the lower rate, Aldermen Hartsfield, Gordon, McEnder, Armstrong, Buchanan, Carpenter, Bachman, Councilman Moore.

The proposed rate will not be submitted for approval by the mayor until after the adjournment of council Thursday, giving him until the following Wednesday to decide whether to approve or veto it.

Masons Gathering For Convocation Of 4 Days Here

Several hundred Scottish Rite Masons from all sections of north Georgia are gathering in Atlanta for the opening today of the 29th general convocation of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Free Masonry. During the four days, beginning today, large classes will receive degrees ranging from the fourth to the 32d.

This morning afternoon and tonight, conferring of the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, ninth, 13th and 14th degrees will be made, and the eighth, tenth, 11th and 12th degrees will be communicated.

After the class reaches the 18th degree, or "Knight Rose Croix," the winter class, which has already received the 18th degree, will join and the two classes will receive the remaining degrees together.

ENGINEER URGES NEED OF REVISION

final solution of the traffic problem which is the intention of the engineers to propose when they complete their report.

Atlanta was declared to have the highest population per square mile of any city of its size in the United States. The engineers declared that the estimated population of 9,230 persons per square mile is 50 percent higher than the average. This compactness of population accentuates the traffic problem, the engineers stated.

Use of motor vehicles has increased from 13,440 in 1918 to 38,251 in 1923, further complicating the problem, it was reported.

Irregular arrangement of streets and the further fact that the "principal business district of the city, bounded by Pryor, Spring, Ellis and Mitchell streets, is less than one-sixth of a square mile, further increase congestion.

Speed of Vehicles.

Average speeds of motor vehicles were recorded as averaging 7.67 miles an hour on Peachtree, 6.28 miles on Forsyth, 6.28 miles on Broad, 7.1 miles on Marietta and 7.14 miles for the entire district. Street car traffic was found to move at an average speed of 4.11 miles through the business district. The aim of the engineers is to find means of speeding up this movement.

The engineers reported that actual count showed an average, during rush hours, of 16,286 people carried in 346 street cars in one hour and 6,345 people carried in 3,503 other vehicles during the same period, supporting the claim that street cars should be given precedence in traffic movement because more people were dependent on them.

Traffic Recommendations.

The recommendations were explained as follows:

Remedies for traffic evils, as suggested by the investigators, are as follows:

Various remedies for the improvement of transportation conditions have been proposed and some of them are of great effect. Several widening projects have been completed, notably Peachtree street, West Peachtree street and Peachtree street. The widening of Peachtree street, which is the widest street in the city, is the most important project of the Spring street viaduct has been instrumental in diverting a large portion of the vehicular traffic, but it is evident that further relief is urgently needed along the lines proposed by the city plan commission, especially the building of the viaduct on Pryor street and Central avenue.

It is in the matter of the location and spacing of car stops, double berthing of street cars, establishment of suitable safety regulations and strict enforcement of parking regulations that additional results of a desirable nature can be accomplished quickly. A minimum of expense and but slight change in the daily habits of the riders of street cars and vehicles alike will be required.

Spacing of Car Stops.

It is possible to improve the car service and aid the general traffic movements by the expedient of placing car stops where they will interfere with traffic movements. On Peachtree, Broad and Forsyth streets some of the stops are already spaced out to prevent a serious tying up of traffic, but others remain that are but 200 to 300 feet apart. With a minimum of expense as this a car is barely in motion before it is obliged to slow up preparatory to making another stop.

Aside from their frequency, some stop locations are particularly poorly chosen by reason of their being placed in such a position that a car, when loading, ties up traffic for some distance behind it. An example of this is the eastbound stop on Houston at Peachtree. When a car is loading here, vehicles frequently line up blocking the entire corridor. This stop should be moved just across Pryor street. For good operation car stops should be placed no less than 600 feet apart. At a junction point the stop should be placed on both tracks, if possible, to make it on the branch tracks, thereby preventing the stopping of cars on one route from interfering with movements of cars on the other.

Immediate readjustment of the number of stop locations in the congested area should help the general traffic movements while the faster speed of cars will be of inestimable value to the street car patrons.

Double Berthing.

The present method of loading a single car at a time is largely responsible for the lingering movements of cars through the congested area. One car will consume half a minute or more in loading while the one behind it, being held back by the first car, is held back. In order to alleviate this condition double berthing, or loading of cars in pairs, must be employed at all the stops included within this congested district. The first car to approach the stop should always take the forward position. When a second car arrives while the first is still standing, it invariably should take the second berth, and when it goes forward after taking on and discharging passengers, it should proceed without stopping at the forward position unless detained by the traffic officer. This will avoid confusion as to which berth the car is to occupy, and no time will be wasted in making more than one stop to serve the same location.

Safety Zones and Raised Platforms.

At the most important stopping places safety zones consisting of ropes and stanchions are installed in which passengers may congregate directly at the point for boarding the car. It has been found that with a free path for vehicles outside the car tracks and safety zones, the movement of all traffic is accelerated. With the installation of double berthing these safety zones where not already long enough should be extended to accommodate two cars.

and pedestrians are obliged to walk around the platform in crossing the street. This platform should be put back to the line with the building line. There is not sufficient room to extend this platform back to accommodate the cars. The only way to solve the live southbound "back turning into Marietta" is double berthing at Forsyth on both sides by loading the first car from the platform and the second car from the street.

Wherever there is heavy loading and the raised safety platform should be installed at the loading points. Their use permits more rapid loading since the platform eliminates the first step from the street into the car. They protect the public more effectively than any other practical arrangement. Boarding and alighting of passengers is greatly enhanced by having a safe place to stand in. We recommend their immediate installation at the following locations: northbound: Broad at Alabama; northbound: Broad at Alabama; southbound: Broad at Marietta; northbound: Broad at Marietta; southbound: Marietta at Broad; eastbound: Marietta at Broad; westbound: Alabama at Forsyth.

Platform Change.

As soon as the necessary special work is installed it is proposed to reverse the direction of the cars on Alabama street between Forsyth and Broad streets. Should this be done soon it would be well to suspend loading the platform at Forsyth on Alabama and construct one on Alabama at Broad.

The use of platforms not only adds to the comfort and safety of the car riders, but facilitates the movement of general street traffic. The platforms must be owned and controlled by the city and always subject to the police regulations.

Street Collectors.

Street collectors are employed at the heavier loading points. These men sell fares and issue receipts of payment to passengers who deliver them to the motor cars on entering the front end of the car. By this means the loading time is shortened and cars are loaded more evenly by increasing the comfort of the patrons. This feature is especially adaptable here because it segregates to a certain extent the mixed loading. This street collector also aids in directing the flow of the cars, and it is in a position to see every one waiting to board.

At present street collectors are employed at the following locations: Hunter at Pryor; westbound: Broad at Hunter; northbound: Broad at Alabama; northbound: Edgewood at Pryor; eastbound: Houston at Peachtree; eastbound: Peachtree at Houston; northbound: Ellis at Peachtree; northbound: Walton at Broad; eastbound.

With the double berthing and increased concentration of loading, this feature should be extended to cover all the loading platforms in the city. The company will be well repaid by the faster movement of the cars.

Where either loading platforms or safety zones are installed they will fill of their purpose unless traffic is kept moving. Regulations should be such that vehicles will not be required to stop behind waiting street cars, but will proceed past the safety zones or platforms whenever the traffic permits. No vehicle should be allowed to stop opposite platforms or safety zones at any time except for traffic control.

Vehicles must keep clear of the car tracks in approaching street intersections and at all double berthing and loading points. Owing to their superior carrying capacity, the street cars should be given the preference as far as practical in crossing movements of traffic officers and the preference should be accorded therewith. This will facilitate the movement of the greatest number of people with a minimum loss of time. Full recognition of the relative importance of the various factors of mass transportation must not be lost sight of.

The system of controlling traffic by means of signal lights is of chief importance, but it will fail of its chief purpose if personal supervision is lacking in directing the more complicated traffic movements.

Parking Problem.

In Atlanta, as in most large cities, parking is becoming a serious problem. Its effect on the business district is particularly acute here because of the many narrow streets. Angular parking is especially undesirable as allowed on Marietta street. The cars in backing into the roadway cause traffic interference and increase the accident hazard.

In cities like New York and Chicago, the use of private automobiles in the congested area is comparatively insignificant. In Chicago's loop district all parking is prohibited during the evening rush hours. There may be as yet no general necessity for such a drastic step here, but the time is rapidly approaching when all parking will be prohibited on the main thoroughfares of important cities and their use given over solely to moving traffic.

One stretch where similar action is necessary in Atlanta is along the three blocks on Peachtree street between Luckie and Ellis streets. This constitutes the chief bottleneck through which the heaviest car and vehicular traffic passes in entering and leaving the business district. The jam is of daily and frequently of hourly occurrence. Parking on either side of the street within these three blocks should be prohibited.

WESTERN FARMERS THREATENING BOLT

by the attitude of the eastern press toward letting Henry Ford have Muscle Shoals. The farmers say there is a campaign of opposition to that contract which they cannot account for but which they resent deeply. It should be remembered that Henry Ford's offer to Muscle Shoals was not inspired of Ford's own initiative, but came from one of the great farm organizations, the American Farm Bureau federation. It was the officers of this organization that called Ford's motive was to utilize the great time investment the government had made at Muscle Shoals by arranging for Ford to make fertilizer at a price kept low by the fact that he would not need to pay interest on the original investment. Apparently, it was the officers of this farm organization that actually wrote the contract.

Farmers Wrote Clause.

That document has one of the most remarkable clauses ever written into a contract. By it, Ford undertakes to make and sell fertilizer at a net profit not over 8 per cent; and in order that this may be carried out, he agrees that his books shall be inspected, and the selling price of the fertilizer regulated by a board consisting of representatives of the American Farm Cooperative Union of America.

The fight to give Muscle Shoals to Ford is now the fight of these organizations, and not of Ford himself. These farm organizations are now inclined to complain a little because, as they say, Ford is unwilling to lend a hand in the fight. From other quarters the hint comes, in fact, that Ford does not now take as much interest in the project as he did, that he went into it in a mood of enthusiasm that has now passed off, and that some of his intimate associates, including his wife and son, are opposed to his going on with it.

Norris Opposes Ford.

A curious cross-current to this fight of the farm organizations to give Muscle Shoals to Ford is the fact that a few senators, notably Norris, of Nebraska, who are at the front of most movements to aid the farmer, are violently opposed to this one. Norris' position is that the government should retain Muscle Shoals and manufacture the fertilizer itself. Norris, holding this position, is in a curious line-up with the capitalists and others who oppose the Ford offer for diametrically opposed reasons. If the Ford offer fails to be adopted, it will be because of this queer combination between advocates of the government manufacture of fertilizer, and interests who feel that Henry Ford should not be given at Muscle Shoals a franchise for making water power which runs 100 years and is free from government regulation, while every other water power company is restricted to 50 years and is held subject to strict government regulation.

Favor McNary-Haugen Bill.

The other bill about which some, but not all, of the farmers are excited, is the McNary-Haugen bill for the artificial raising and arbitrary fixing of wheat prices at the level of the prices of manufactured goods and of other commodities generally, through a government corporation financed with $200,000,000 of government money. On Saturday, a delegation of western farmers, not a Washington in the interest of this bill, called on the writer and said, among other things, that the farmers of Minnesota have definitely set their hearts on this bill as the one cure for their trouble, and that if the bill fails, not one republican congressman will be elected from Minnesota this fall.

As respects this McNary-Haugen bill, there is the same division among farm leaders as respects Muscle Shoals. For example, on the same day, ex-Governor McKelvie, of Nebraska, who is the owner of a farm paper, called on the writer and said that the farmers of the states south of the belt where wheat is the main crop are inclined to be opposed to the McNary-Haugen bill, so far as they take any interest in it at all.

Bill Really Inspired.

One clear fact has been developed in the Washington discussion of the McNary-Haugen bill. While large groups of farmers have come to support it, the fact is that the bill was inspired, and much of the propaganda in favor of it, comes not from farmers, but from big organizations of farm implement manufacturers, some western bankers, and some local chambers of commerce in the west.

This action on the part of some business men is deeply resented by other business men, who say that business men and bankers, instead of being the first to suggest inflation should be the last to countenance it. This latter group of business men are confident in predicting that if the farmer will wait a few months before trying to raise his prices to the level of others, a tide is just setting in which will bring the prices of other goods down to the levels of the prices of his goods.

COLON POISONING CLOUDS THE MIND

Makes You Nervous, Irritable and Blue.

You are a wise man or woman if you understand your colon and keep it in perfect working order. Health, happiness, vigor and long life are the gifts which an active colon gives you—and a lazy colon takes away.

Your colon is the last five feet of your digestive canal. It is your sewerage system; your garbage can, so to speak. Keep it clean and you are well and happy; let it stagnate and it will distill the poisons of decay, fermentation (gas) and putrefaction into your blood; poisoning your brain and nerves so that you are restless, irritable and blue; poisoning your heart so that you are weak, listless and lazy; poisoning your lungs so that your breath is heavy or foul; poisoning your stomach and digestive organs so that you are bloated, belching and uncomfortable with gas pains; poisoning your blood so that your skin looks yellow, sallow and unhealthy; poisoning every part and organ of your body, through your blood, making you look and feel old and ugly long before your time; making your joints and your back stiff and rheumatic; your eyes dull and your brain sluggish.

By the perfect law of Nature, your colon should empty itself three times a day—within an hour after eating. Does your colon work that well? If not, it has lost its tone. What do we mean by tone? Your colon is a hollow muscle. Its walls are made up of long, muscle fibres or muscle cells which, by their contraction, empty the colon, just as you would squeeze a rubber hose pipe. These muscle fibres should contract three times a day within an hour after each meal. If they do not contract, they have lost their tone—their power to contract.

But, there is a practically perfect remedy for lazy, flabby colons. This remedy is a different person. Your colon is absolutely harmless and decidedly pleasant to take. Clip this article and take it to your druggist. Tell him to give you a bottle of Colotone—the colon tonic. It will cost you one dollar if you are pleased with it, nothing if you are not pleased with it, for every druggist has been instructed to refund the price and ask no questions if his customer is not thoroughly satisfied.

But you will be delighted with Colotone for it will make you feel like a different person. Your eyes will sparkle with vitality and alertness; your brain will be clear and active; your complexion will be fresh and transparent, reflecting the purity of your blood; your digestion will be thorough and your appetite keen, for your food will taste delightful and will agree with you; you will sleep and awake refreshed; your system will be full of vim and vigor; you will feel younger, stronger, vigorous—you will enjoy the pleasure of being young.

Get started on Colotone today. Nearly every person over twenty-five or thirty years of age, and many younger, need Colotone more or less. You will be simply delighted with it. Colotone can not possibly do you any harm—it can only do you good. Try it on our guarantee. It will help you live long, well and happily.—(adv.)

WORSE THAN WAR!

Traffic accidents in Atlanta continue to pile up daily. The number of deaths and casualties from this cause alone since January 1st has broken all previous records.

It is doubtful if it does not break the record of any other city of the same size in the world.

Two children were among the killed Saturday; eleven injured, some fatally, Sunday, and the lives of many children seriously menaced; and even before the work-whistles had started the machinery of Monday into action two other victims were run down and seriously, if not fatally, injured.

The streets of Atlanta are becoming as unsafe as the firing-line of a battle. Every day, without a single exception, there are a number of serious injuries, and there is scarcely a day in which one or more people are not killed by the accidents. It is worse than war, deaths and casualties considered. Not any war in history, averaged through its existence, has drawn as heavy a toll from the same number of participants in an average time as the war of traffic is drawing in Atlanta today.

Agencies are at work, desperately in earnest too, to minimize traffic accidents, but they go tragically on all the same. The appalling story of the results, in deaths and injuries, is displayed daily from the three viewpoints of the Five Points triangle. Thousands see the figures daily and marvel, but the accidents continue to swell in volume.

The traffic committee of council has wrestled—indeed is wrestling—with the problem. The Safety Council and the Sane Drivers' club wrestle with it. The police department is daily and rightly wrestling with it. Arrests are made daily, sometimes scores of them, but the traffic accidents continue without abatement. The situation grows worse; certainly not any better.

The grand jury in its spring term presents "urges upon the city authorities immediate, proper and serious steps be taken to give to the city a reasonable, adequate and efficient traffic ordinance regulating automobiles, and that this be done without fear or favor, that the lives and safety of the citizens of this community be protected."

All of which is most excellent advice, but just the other day a new traffic ordinance was vetoed on the ground that Atlanta has too many traffic laws and too little enforcement.

What Atlanta will have to eventually come to—and it had just as well turn attention to that thought—is the allocation of a number of one-way streets; the designation of some cross-town traffic boulevards into which side or intersecting traffic shall not emerge without coming to a full stop; a more rigid penalizing of all violators, and the absolute abrogation of one's right to drive a car, whether owner or employee, if caught at the wheel either intoxicated or at a reckless speed of driving.

It is no time to temporize with the situation. The streets of Atlanta are so unsafe that newspapers all over the country are discussing the situation. Visitors are turned away from Atlanta for fear of being unable to negotiate the streets and crossings without being maimed or killed.

This situation will not do! It is best that the conditions be faced as quickly as possible, as every life is precious and every day carries one or more into eternity.

A STEP FORWARD.

The editors of all the South Carolina newspapers that are members of the Associated Press, and this includes all of the leading daily morning and afternoon papers in the state, have paid that organization a well deserved tribute.

At the same time the South Carolina newspapers have correctly interpreted the will of public opinion regarding news—and particularly political news—and the desire that it shall be unbiased, always accurate and thus always dependable, and certainly always free from reflecting any of the party or factional views of the individual newspaper's editorial policy.

In South Carolina the state campaigns are conducted differently from those in any other state in the union. All of the candidates for state house offices make a tour of the state in a body and hold joint debates at each county seat. These debates usually attract throngs of people, and sometimes are spirited.

This tour is conducted under the auspices of the state democratic committee. Heretofore each of the leading daily papers, covering cities like Columbia, Charleston, Spartanburg, Greenville, Anderson, Greenwood and so on, have had representatives following the tour, usually continuing through sixty or more days.

In spite of the well-known rule of newspaperdom that all news shall be accurate and unbiased, it is only natural that the enthusiastic personal preferences of individual papers thus represented crept into the reports.

With the Associated Press' record for accuracy, completeness and absolute abrogation of all partisanship in its news reports so well established, the Associated Press has been asked not only to supervise for all the absolute press papers in South Carolina during the primary election news, but to assign a staffman to the county-to-county campaign, thus eliminating past factional and biased reports, and assuring for the readers of all the papers alike correct and thoroughly dependable news reports of the various meetings.

This is not only something new in newspaper cooperation, and a striking tribute to a great news gathering association, but it must appeal strongly to the reading public whose confidence has been too often shaken by the outcropping of partisan feelings within news columns of the newspapers.

It is precisely this interpretation of the public demand that influenced The Constitution in the late presidential campaign in Georgia to keep its news columns free from any factional or partisan bias, as between candidates and their managers, at the same time open to all alike as far as legitimate and uncontroversial news should find places in the news pages of a newspaper.

There is nothing more distracting to a newspaper reader than to find unreliable, untrustworthy and partially biased the news columns of his or her favorite newspaper. A newspaper, in truth, ceases to function as such when news is colored, cut or exploited to meet personal views or political policies.

By the same token the editorial page is accepted as the editor's views, and so long as they comport to high-class, intelligent discussions of public issues they are expected to reflect, fearlessly and vigorously, the outstanding policies for which the newspaper stands.

The position of the South Carolina daily press will be commended by all, and it may be taken as the dawn of a new day in southern journalism—the day that will bring an end to the old theory that news columns may properly be perverted to factional purposes or used for selfish political ends.

The news columns of a newspaper belong to the reader, who has a right to demand the truth, and nothing but the truth in all news reports—and that is the very foundation upon which the Associated Press is built.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

RESUSCITATION.
If Uncle George made the medicine cabinet strictly according to the plans and specifications of this series of talks we've been having about the management of minor ills and emergencies, he provided two or three empty pigeon holes or spaces between the phenolphthalein and the Sedlitz powders, both of which we discussed last time, the medicines, not the holes.
as you have probably forgotten—or if you did not it out somebody went to light his pipe. Let us take advantage of these empty spaces and make sure just how we ought to go about resususcitating a person who is overcome by gas, suffocation, carbon monoxide from the exhaust of an automobile, or one who is apparently drowned or shocked by electricity. In other words, how to perform—a word
I hate, so let us say rather how to do artificial respiration. Such knowledge naturally belongs to the physical side, so it is a sad but horrible common occurrence for poorly educated people to stand by utterly helpless while a precious life ebbs away, or want of just a little knowledge such as any Boy Scout or any Girl Scout has; God bless the men and women who give us the soundest and best First, let me impress upon you as forcibly as possible three don'ts which apply in any drowning emergency or whenever resuscitation or artificial respiration is to be used.

1. Don't look for a barrel.

2. Don't try to "pump the arms."

3. Don't wait for a pulmotor or any other apparatus to arrive.

The most effective method of inducing or restoring breathing more effective than any machine, and at the same time the simplest and least laborious to apply, is the method known as Schaefer's. Schaefer's method, moreover, is less likely to injure the subject than is a pulmotor or lung pump or the old fashioned "pump and handle" method. As Schaefer describes it:

"It consists in laying the subject in the prone posture, preferably on the ground, with a thick folded garment or blanket or pillow underneath the chest and epigastrium. The operator puts himself at the side of the subject, facing his head, and places his hands on each side of the lower part of the back. He then slowly throws the weight of his body forward to bear upon his own arms, and thus presses upon the chest of the subject and forces air out of the lungs.
This being effected, he gradually relaxes the pressure by bringing his own body up again to a more erect position, but without moving the hands."

Every man, woman and child should be absolutely sure he or she knows precisely how to do artificial respiration, and the only way you can be sure you know is by trying it on a volunteer subject. There should be a suitable penalty provided for contributory negligence when anybody permits a life to go out without rendering this kind of first aid in an attempt to save.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

New York, May 5.—What becomes of discarded movie stars? Four who flashed across the screen as headliners a few years ago are now hostesses in New York supper clubs. Just as the principal without punch has failed to turn to saloonkeeping, so apparently does the ex-movie queen turn to cabaret hostessing.

It is a come down, to be sure.
They must face life as it is lived and not as it appears on the tinseled Xmas card. Where once they were protected from sharp contacts by producers, they must now face wine flushed and loose tongued royster-ers—who have the yoke off for the night.

As a general thing the movie star whose glamour has faded has not had the experience on the legitimate stage that would entitle her to character parts or to leading ladyship with stock companies. Without her director she is indeed out of the picture.

It is an odd occupation—this supper check in the chief requisite. They flit from table to table passing small talk and accepting rather indelicately bidding. It requires tact not to offer.

While the pay is good it does not compare with film earnings. The average salary for the hostess is $100 a week with a percentage of the drink sale. During the day they must whip up by phoning patrons and inviting them to drop in.

Also they must arrange "special events"—moving picture nights, stage rights and the like. They depend largely on former acquaintances to the world happy with his story of adventures in the heart of Africa's darkest wilderness. There may be times when he is a little out of his mind, but there are other delights to encounter. There is a possibility that he meets up with the kind of whom Stanley wrote in his "Zanzibar." A dwarf-like people, who eat ants and live in tree tops and who cannot be convinced that outside their forests there are fields, the great luxuriant meadows. They eat their own the heart of that mysterious continent?

Innocent Victims.
Hundreds of thousands of dollars are contributed in this country toward the starving children of Ger-ter, telling that the committee of the Italian Red Cross, which has been in most Italian cities are filled with Germans, who pay top prices for their comforts and don't seem to be concerned a great deal about the starvation at home. This is no reason to desert from lending a helping hand. The starving children cannot be charged with the deplorable lack of compassion in their rich compatriot. Because wealthy Germans do not grasp an elementary duty, it is no reason why Americans should follow suit. There are tens of thousands of suffering children in Germany. Children. LITTLE CHILDREN.

Holland has contracted a loan in New York. That's the first time in its history. Formerly Holland always went to England to borrow, but times went to the country and the Dutch came fair suggestion. Emma went to Rus-

She was disillusioned and disappointed, and she was honest enough to admit it. People are not dealt with ized order. This particular San Francisco thought is medieval.

CAPT. THOMAS POWELL DIES AT FT. McPHERSON

The body of Captain Thomas Jett Powell, of the quartermaster corps, who died Sunday night at the Lawson general hospital at Fort McPherson, was taken to Washington Monday for funeral and interment. He will be laid to rest with full military honors.

Captain Powell, who was 47 years old, was born and educated in Wash-college, he entered the engineering profession, later accepting a civil service appointment in the engineering department at Washington, where he superintended erection of several important engineering works, including the magnificent fountain in front of the union station.

Captain Powell was commissioned a major in the engineering corps in 1917, a short time after the United States entered the war, and was later with distinction in France. Returning to this country, he was detailed as an instructor in reconstruction work at general hospital No. 2, Fort McPherston, Maryland, and was later transferred to Lawson general hospital.

He is survived by his widow and two children, who accompanied the body to Washington.

191 Stills Razed By Pro Agents In State in April Activities of federal prohibition agents in Georgia during April resulted in the destruction of 191 moonshine stills, 1,307 gallons of whiskey and the arrest of 112 alleged violators of the prohibition laws, and report of F. D. Dismuke, federal prohibition director.

Value of property seized and destroyed amounted to $35,832.85. In this subject, have been awarded as prizes for essays written by girls students of the fourth grade in the high schools of the state. These prizes were given by the Georgia Home Economics association, which last week held its annual meeting at Savannah, as part of the Georgia Educational association.

Miss Susan Mathews, chairman of the committee of the Home Economics Association, which has been in charge of the contest and on Monday announced the prize winners as follows:
First prize, $100 scholarship, won by Mattie Mae Rushing, of First District A. & M. school at States-boro.

Second prize, $75 scholarship, won by Evelyn Sawyer, of Commercial High school, Atlanta. Her home address is 53 Boulevard Terrace.
Third prize, $50 scholarship, won by Wynelle Itwell, of Tubman High school, Augusta. Home address, 1204 Green street, Augusta.

Funds for these scholarships were raised by the home economics teachers in the state, about 150 in number, with the addition of a $50 donation made by the Atlanta Women's club.
Judges of contest essays were Miss Emmaline Whitcomb, of the U. S. bureau of education; Miss Helen Atwater, editor of the Home Economics Journal, and Dr. Minna C. Denton, specialist in the U. S. bureau of home economics.

New officers of the Georgia Home Economics association, elected last week, were Miss Erna Procter, Athens, president; Miss Susan Mathews, Athens, vice president; Miss Clara Haskell, Milledgeville, secretary; Miss Mary Faust, Savannah, treasurer, and Miss Clara Lee Lane, Atlanta, councillor for the association.

Outgoing officers were Miss Lois
Dowdle, Athens, president; Miss Katherine Turner, Milledgeville, vice president; Miss Maud Green, Atlanta, secretary, and Miss Sarah Eve, Atlanta, treasurer.

WAR NOW PLANNED ON IMPROPER USE OF DEALERS' TAGS
Pointing out that the state motor vehicle law bars use of auto dealers' license tags except on cars in actual use as demonstrators or on vehicles of the dealer, H. Grover Bell, deputy revenue commissioner of the state, on Monday said that his department shortly would begin a drive against the improper use of these dealers' tags.

The move to stop this abuse of the dealer tag privilege began Monday when letters of warning were sent to all automobile dealers. Quoting that section of the law which says
"no dealer or manufacturer may use a dealer tag for private use or on cars for hire," Mr. Bell said he counted at least 25 dealer tags on pleasure cars on Sunday.

Mr. Bell also reported making cases for alleged violation of the state cigar and cigarette stamp tax law against Mike Carey, 230 Decatur street;
Charles George, 240 Decatur street;
Ben Brown, 104 North Butler street, and D. C. Nicholas, 162 East Ellis street. He also made a case charging failure to pay the state occupational tax against Walter Harris, colored, of 62 Decatur street. Harris operates a poolroom and cafe and, according to Mr. Bell, owes the state about $800 in unpaid taxes.

CONVENTION TRIP BY WATER ROUTE OPPOSED BY DEAN
Objecting to a proposal that the Georgia delegation go to the national democratic convention in New York by boat from Savannah, H. H. Dean, of Gainesville, one of the delegates at large, has written all members of the delegation urging that the party travel together by rail to New York.
He suggests that if the boat trip is desired, those who wish may return home by water after the convention is over.

The letter also states that if the convention lasts three weeks—which he says is possible—some of the delegates are likely to get restless and become willing to vote for any candidate who will support them in order to get through and back to their business. This situation, he says, is what the machine politicians desire, and may result in a really strong candidate losing his support and the non-machine going to a weak man, put forth as a last minute attempt to break a deadlock.

FINAL SERVICES FOR O. S. TRAVIS TO BE HELD TODAY

Funeral services for Otis S. Travis, Atlanta railroad man, who died Sunday at the residence of his sister, Mrs.
Frederic Hanson, of Kirkwood, will be held at 11 o'clock this morning from the Pleasant Grove Methodist church, near Riverside, Rev. William C. McNeel, officiating. Interment will be in the churchyard and the Riverside lodge, F. & A. M., will have charge of services at the grave.

Mrs. Travis, who was 49 years old, had resided in Atlanta for 25 years.
He was a member of Riverside lodge,
Yaarab Temple, and Pleasant Grove Riverside church, of Riverside. He was employed with the Central of Georgia Railway for 22 years and secretary and treasurer of the Brotherhood of Railroad Telegraphers for 10 years.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs.
Martha Travis; four brothers, W. G.
M. O. L. G. and A. C. Travis; four sisters, Mrs. Frederic Hanson, Mrs.
A. C. Hanson, Mrs. O. Q. Mann and Mrs. V. H. Williams.

CITY AUDITORIUM LIKE WAR SCENE ON MONDAY NIGHT

With large shipments of military equipment being unloaded and companies of two battalions of the 200th infantry, national guard, in regular weekly drill practice, the city auditorium Monday night looked more like a busy army camp than headquarters for Atlanta's newest national guard regiment.

In the absence of Colonel Charles H. Cox, who is in Washington, attending a conference of national guard officers of the United States, Lieutenant Colonel Eugene Oberdorfer was in command. Lieutenant Colonel J. B. Ennis, regular army officers assigned to the national guard in Georgia, were present and commented enthusiastically on the progress and general discipline of the regiment.
The two regular army officers made interesting talks to officers in the regular officers' meeting following drill.

Second Lieutenant Sterling B.
Howard of Company B was named to succeed First Lieutenant "Dumny" LeBay, resigned, during the summer enlistment were discussed at the officers' meeting as were plans for mobilization of the new regiment in accordance with recent army department orders.

Officers of the regiment will meet at noon Wednesday at the Kimball for luncheon and the usual weekly discussion of questions of a military nature of interest to national guard officers will be held.

FREE LEGAL AID TO POOR PLANNED BY NEW SOCIETY Setting forth their object as that of helping free legal advice and aid to individuals and firms unable to pay for it, a group of prominent Atlanta attorneys Monday filed application with the Fulton superior court for the appointment of the Atlanta Legal Aid Society in Fulton superior court.
The application sets forth that since the society has no pecuniary gain in view, no capital stock is proposed; that it is not a charitable organization for any reason, any funds that may be on hand are to be turned over to the Community Chest or some similar organization.

Lawyers listed as petitioners are Bond Almond, Philip Alston, R. W.
Crenshaw, S. N. Ervin, E. Smythe
Gambrell, Leonard Haas, Harold Hirsch, Albert Howell, the Rev. B.
R. Lacy, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church; Roy LeCraw, Grover Middlebrooks, Edgar A. Neely,
Hector B. O'Connell, John A. Sibley,
Marion Smith and John L. Tye, Jr.

MRS. R. H. BARTH LAID TO REST IN WEST VIEW
Funeral services for Mrs. R. H.
Barth, who died Saturday at the residence, 488 South Boulevard, were held at 11 o'clock Monday morning from the chapel of Barclay & Brandon. Her brother-in-law, Rev. Carl Barth, of Macon, conducted the services. Interment was in West View cemetery.

Mrs. Barth was well known in church and civic circles of the city.
She was born in Atlanta, receiving her musical education at the Southern Conservatory of Music, and had resided here all her life.

She is survived by her husband,
Professor Raymond Barth, Atlanta musician; a son, Raymond Walter Barth; three sisters, Mrs. Carolyn Brook, Mrs. Carl Barth and Miss Myra Robinson; an aunt, Miss Fannie Barth; a niece, Miss Geraldine Goninson; and a nephew, William Robinson.

The Trouble With Georgia Editor Constitution: I read your editorial on the progress made by the southern states, except Georgia, and wanting to know what is the matter with Georgia.

One trouble with Georgia is machine politics or the enthronement of dema-gogy instead of statesmanship.
But that is not Georgia's greatest trouble. I believe the greatest menace to our liberties is at least a partial breakdown of our judiciary.

Now what is the remedy for these evils that are dragging the good name of Georgia into a quagmire of political and judicial debauchery?

The selection of judges and solicitors should be lodged with the governor, removed entirely from the suffrage of the people; and they would not have to take any political considerations to ascertain the political strength of those interested in cases before the courts.

I believe that then, and not till then, the courthouses will really be "temples of justice."

J. E. STERNBERG.

Humphries Plans To Lessen Work Of Grand Jurors

Declaring that the custom of asking indictments by the grand jury in all crimes to cause the city the size of Atlanta involves a serious loss of time, both to grand jurors and to witnesses, Judge John D. Humphries, of Fulton superior court, recommended bringing accusations in all cases less serious than murder by the solicitor general, in his charge to the new grand jury for the May term.

BARKLEY BILL ROW RAGES 12 HOURS

Washington, May 5.—A bitter fight which developed today over the Barkley bill to abolish the railroad labor board kept the house in session until nearly midnight. In the end, democrats and republican insurgents, routing the republican organization, succeeded in having debate on the measure limited to three hours.

During the session, which lasted nearly 12 hours, without a break, republican leaders, resorting to filibuster tactics, vainly attempted to stave off house consideration of the measure. Much of the time was taken up with 18 roll calls, each consuming half an hour.

Adjournment left the leaders on both sides in the air as to future procedure. Representative Barkley, democrat, Kentucky, author of the bill, said he might attempt to have the house resume consideration of the measure tomorrow and its opponents announced they would resist any move to bring it up within the next two weeks.

BARKLEY BILL IS TAKEN AWAY FROM COMMITTEE.

Washington, May 5.—The house today took out of the hands of its commerce committee the Barkley bill to abolish the railroad labor board and brought the measure to the floor for action.

The vote by which the measure was taken from committee, where it has remained without action for weeks, was 194 to 181.

GEORGIA CONGRESSMEN VOTE BILL OUT.

Washington, May 5.—(Special.) All of the seven members of the house from Georgia who were present Monday voted for immediate consideration of the Barkley bill, which abolishes the railroad labor board and sets up in its place four boards of adjustment and a board of mediation and conciliation as a final appeal.

They were, Brand, Camp, Larsen, Lee, Moore, Vinson and Wright.

On the first vote, authorizing discharge of the bill from committee on petition from 150 members of the house, all of these members except Larson voted for the bill to be brought out. Those absent were Park, Upshaw, Wise, Bell and Lankford.

Forcing this bill out of committee and bringing it to immediate consideration was the first victory under the new rule, which was enacted at the beginning of the session by a coalition of democrats and insurgent republicans.

W. W. Harrell, 19, of 298 1-2 North Boulevard, and his 20-year old brother, S. B. Harrell, were arrested Monday night, suspected of being the men who on Saturday night slugged and robbed J. L. Crenshaw, night manager of the Ryan filling station, at Highland avenue and Boulevard.

Detectives S. N. Roper and J. C. Mosely, who made the arrests, state that the youths admit the slugging, but deny the robbery.

According to the story of the police, the brothers drove to the station Saturday night to make a purchase, but claim after an argument, Crenshaw threatened to throw them out of the station and drew a gun. The younger Harrell states that he took the revolver away from Crenshaw and used it to knock the filling station operator down, according to the police. The men are held on charges of disorderly conduct.

Permanent Injunction Granted in Colored Odd Fellow Contest

A permanent injunction, preventing any other than those decreed by the supreme court as the rightful order of District Grand Lodge No. 18, Grand United Order of Odd Fellows of America, from using that name, has been granted by Judge George L. Bell, of Fulton superior court. The injunction ends a long legal fight between two warring factions of the colored lodge, each of which claimed to be the legal organization, and each branding the other as imposters. Petition asking the injunction was signed by A. Graves, A. N. Gordon, W. A. Collier and W. E. Davis.

The injunction prevents the barred faction from using the name, emblem or ritual of the order, and establishes the winners of the court fight as representatives of the organization in Georgia.

A decision holding the faction now in power as legally in the right was rendered by the Georgia supreme court in February, 1923, and a temporary injunction practically identical with the permanent one just granted was signed January 18 by Judge W. D. Ellis.

News has been received here of the death of Dr. Marion Lawrence, internationally known as a leader in Sunday school work, who visited Atlanta in January.

Beautiful Floral Baskets Decorate Bank at Opening of Its New Quarters

Scores of floral baskets from well-wishing friends and business connections practically made a bower of the Atlanta and Lowry National bank, Edgewood avenue and Pryor street, at the opening of its new home last Thursday. Work on the new quarters had been carried on continuously since 1922, but business was transacted as usual throughout the remodeling period. Offices and lobby of the bank now rank with the most beautiful of southern institutions.

EMERGENCY CORPS PLANNED IN WAR

with Alderman Hartsfield, represented the city at the meeting, told the council that his office was aware of the condition but in large measure was helpless to improve it because of the small number of people in the tax department. Assessors and clerks are occupied fully in handling the returns of people who are on the tax digest. He stated that an emergency corps of four men would be needed to follow up discoveries of the council this year and probably a regular corps of four men would be needed throughout the year to keep tab on new residents.

Will Work for Corps.

Alderman Hartsfield declared his purpose of getting the emergency corps for this year.

Chairman Brooke deferred appointment of the special intervic committee until a conference of its officers can be held.

Mr. Little told the committee that present ordinances require the school department to turn over to the tax office a list of all patrons, require hotels, office buildings, apartment and tenement owners to turn over a list of all tenants, and that the list of water consumers is always available in the water department to afford a check against the tax digest.

"All we need is the men to do it," he declared.

Results of Probe.

Results of the investigation through Monday as reported to the council by Mr. Talley were:

Of 1,188 heads of families with children in Tech High school, 306 are not on the tax digest.

Of 422 in Spring Street school, 116 are not on the digest.

Of 906 in Commercial High school, 306 are not on the digest.

Of 690 at Highland school, 279 are not on the digest.

Of 561 at Inman Park school, 340 are not on the tax digest.

Of 1,236 at Edmund A. Ware school, the only negro school checked, 1,143 are not on the tax digest.

While the amount of property owned by the tax evading school patrons is not known, it was declared by Chairman Brooke to be a certainty that they owed the city several hundred thousand dollars a year. Even poll tax and street tax assessments without any property tax would amount to nearly $100,000, it was declared.

REVOLT IN CUBA SPREADS, REPORT

sufficient to handle the situation. The Cuban government, it was said tonight, is working on a plan to endeavor to obtain the extradition from the United States of General Carlos Garcia Velez, president; Colonel Manuel Despain, treasurer, and other leaders of the Veterans and Patriots' association, who are in that country. It is expected here that these Cubans will fight extradition on the ground that they are political refugees. No Cuban official would go into details concerning exactly how it was hoped to obtain their return to Cuba, although it was admitted that such an effort probably would be made.

CUBAN FLYERS PLEAD NOT GUILTY.

Ocala, Fla., May 5.—J. Gernandez, Ray Garcia and Robert Martinez, three Cubans, arrested here today by United States Marshal Brunsdick, were arraigned late this afternoon before United States Commissioner C. A. Savage, Jr., on a charge of "preparing the means and setting on foot a military expedition within the United States against Cuba and other countries of Central America" and of conspiring to violate the recent proclamation of President Coolidge dealing with the exportation of arms and ammunition to Cuba.

The three men pleaded not guilty, and were held in default of $2,000 bond each for a preliminary hearing May 15.

The arrests, according to Marshal Brunsdick, were made on information furnished by agents of the department of justice. The Cubans, according to the marshal, were taught to fly by men operating a fleet of six airplanes.

Three men in charge of the school, named as J. Baker, E. M. Lund and F. J. McLaughlin by Marshal Brunsdick, took off in three of the planes here today, their destination being unknown. Federal agents took possession of the three remaining planes and dismantled them.

ATLANTA MOTHERS GUESTS ON MONDAY

class of mothers to whom it is particularly addressed. Those are the mothers whose lot in life is such that they do not often get the opportunity to enjoy a trip to the theater. Those dear, sacrificing souls who have given the best of everything they could to the boys and girls they have sent out into the world, but who, for one reason or another, do not often get the chance for a little frivolity, a few hours of relaxation and refreshment. These are the mothers The Constitution is particularly anxious to see sitting in the comfortable Howard theater seats, smiling at the story of the silver screen as it moves before them, bathing their tired souls in the charm of the music, and forgetting, for an hour or two, the troubles that press upon them in the daily grind of routine life.

That none may be overlooked, The Constitution has arranged to bring the dear old ladies from the Old Ladies' Home, in West End, to the performance. A fleet of Black and White taxicabs, duly furnished by the taxicab company, will call at the home on Monday morning and carry the old ladies to the theater, where special seats will be reserved for them.

Then, there will be white flowers for the mothers who attend the performance. The florists of Atlanta, wishing to pay their tribute to motherhood, have gladly consented to have a supply of fresh white blooms, the pick of their stocks, at the theater, and an effort will be made to give one flower to each mother.

This is a present from The Constitution to the mothers of Atlanta. Clip out the coupon and come, all of you who possibly can. It is the mothers who have made the Atlanta of today, and by that token it is the mothers who have made The Constitution. For a newspaper is really made by its readers. It is the reflection in print of their desires in a paper.

It is with a feeling that it is to our own mothers we are speaking that The Constitution repeats its invitation to clip this coupon and "take in a show with us."

FOUR HURT IN AUTO CRASHES MONDAY

Four were hurt in automobile accidents Monday. The condition of two of the injured—both old men—was reported as being dangerous Monday night by surgeons at Grady hospital.

The injured are T. J. Moon, 65, water flusher in the employ of the city, who lives at 33 Pulliam street; R. R. Mason, 60, a carpenter, 306 Temple street, and two negroes, Jim Kidd and Helen Jones.

Moon was carried to Grady hospital shortly after 8 o'clock Monday morning in the auto of P. P. Gollnick, 20 Dunn street, who, according to the report of Motorcycle Officers

P. B. Dailey and W. W. Ford, reported to doctors and nurses, the aged sanitary employee had been found by him at Stonewall and Walker streets in an unconscious condition. He denied to them, the police say, that his auto had injured Moon. Information gathered by police subsequently led to the arrest of Gollnick as driver of the machine that struck Moon, and he was placed under a $500 bond upon a charge of reckless driving.

Mason was knocked down by a motor truck as he stepped off a street car on Peachtree street. The driver of the truck, it is reported, did not stop nor slacken speed. He was rushed to Grady hospital in a private machine.

Both Mason and Moon are believed to have been hurt internally. Moon also has a fractured skull, surgeons think.

Kidd, one of the negroes hurt, was driver of a heavy truck that crashed into a wagon driven by Harry Rudine, 260 East Fair street. Rudine escaped unhurt, police say, although the horse was crippled.

The negro girl was struck by a truck in Lucile avenue. The driver, L. A. Rary, was charged with reckless driving by Motorcycle Officer L. J. Carroll, who investigated the accident.

EPISCOPALIANS OPEN SAVANNAH MEETING

Savannah, Ga., May 5.—The feature of the opening of the 102nd annual session of the Episcopal diocese of Georgia, today was the address of the Rev. Frederick F. Reese, who is president. The bishop spoke at length reviewing the year's work in the diocese.

He reported to the convention the names of bishops in America and of the priests of the diocese who had died during the year. Among them are the names of Bishop Weed, of Florida, who was a native of Savannah, and of Rev. W. T. Dakin, D. D., rector of St. John church. Eulogies were given for both.

The bishop went fully into the affairs of the diocese, including the number of priests, and the number of confirmations during the year. The decrease in the number of confirmations he views as a matter "for serious and prayerful consideration."

About half of the address was devoted to the movements to end wars and the attacks of the modernists on the virgin birth and the bodily resurrection.

In reference to these subjects the address concluded:

"In conclusion, my brethren, I beg you to stand steadfast in the faith without wavering and without fear. Let us be patient and let the storm spend itself as similar storms have spent themselves in the past."

Addresses by Rev. W. H. Milton, D. D., rector of St. John church, Wilmington, N. C., and by Rev. Elwood Lindsay, missionary to Liberia, featured the night sessions.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY OPENS CONVENTION.

The women's auxiliary of the Episcopal diocese of Georgia, today began its meeting in Savannah. Mrs. W. N. Pratt, of Savannah, the president, presided. She gave a short address of greeting to the delegates. Committees were appointed to serve during the convention. At 1 o'clock the meeting adjourned to permit those attending to have luncheon at St. Paul Episcopal church, the seat of the convention.

In Stockholm, Sweden, people live almost exclusively in flats.

JACKSON IS NAMED ON COTTON BOARD

BY THOMAS STOKES.

Washington, May 5.—(Special.)—L. B. Jackson, director of the Georgia bureau of markets, has been selected as one of the five members of the consulting board of the department of commerce to confer from time to time about cotton statistics issued by the department, especially the bureau of the census. He will be appointed by Secretary Hoover on recommendation of Senator Harris. Other members of the board also will come from southern states. This was learned Monday and official announcement will be made shortly.

Legislation introduced by Senator Harris providing for changes in the law to insure better cotton statistics has been passed, and other suggestions have been made to the department by special committees appointed as the result of activities of senators from the cotton producing states.

The advisory committee of which Mr. Jackson will be a member will be authorized by Secretary Hoover to meet from time to time for the purpose of coordinating cotton statistics and assuring the best possible information to the growers and all others interested.

JACKSON WELL POSTED ON COTTON CONDITIONS

L. B. Jackson is one of the best posted men on agricultural conditions in Georgia. As head of the state bureau of markets, a bureau of the department of agriculture, he is in regular weekly touch with 10,000 farmers through the Market Bulletin.

He is also in charge of the work of organizing cooperative associations in the state to market various products of the soil and farm. Largely as a result of his work, it is stated, farmers of Georgia have received millions more for their products than they otherwise would have been paid.

Mr. Jackson also was instrumental in having more warehouses bonded under the federal warehouse act than any other individual or organization in Georgia or possibly in all of the southern states.

In his new capacity he undoubtedly will be given new opportunities to serve the farmers in helping to guard against errors in publication of cotton statistics, a service which is probably of vital concern in preventing unjustified bear raids on the cotton price.

GEORGIA STUDENT SPEAKS TO Y.W.C.A.

New York, May 5.—A pledge to strive for the removal of the causes of war was embodied in a resolution passed by the students' assembly of the Young Women's Christian association at the eighth biennial convention today. The assembly agreed to "promote a constructive program for peace" and to outlaw war "as an international crime."

In case of war, however, the organization will not attempt to influence its members in any way, it was explained after adoption of the resolution.

Student meetings in the south are rapidly dissipating race prejudice against the negro, Miss Elizabeth Webb, of Brenau college, Gainesville, Ga., declared.

"Young people in the south are beginning to release that hatred for people just because they are black is unnecessary and unchristian-like," Miss Webb said.

COLLEGE OF BISHOPS NAMES COMMITTEES

Nashville, Tenn., May 5.—The following committees were named today by the Southern Methodist College of Bishops in session here: Christian education, Bishops E. D. Mouson and H. M. Dubose; missions, Bishops W. Beauchamp and Hoyt M. Dobbs; superannuate fund, Bishops W. F. McMurray and W. N. Ainsworth. It is probable an adjourned session of the college will be held tomorrow.

8-MONTHS BRIDE DRUGGED HIS TEA

his wife and her trunk had disappeared when he returned.

"She had accused me of paying attention to other women," Welch told the police today, "and when I went fishing with my brother and uncle Saturday night, she accused me of being out on a date." She would not believe me or my companions when we told her where we had been.

"I asked her to go walking Sunday afternoon and she refused, so I went by myself. When I came home for supper, I noticed some white tablets in the tea and later found a broken bottle labeled poison.

"I refused to drink the tea and she cried she would get me anyway and stabbed me in the back."

One tablet was declared by a drugist today to be sufficient to kill a man.

Welch told the police he and his wife have been married only eight months.

100 PER CENT NAVY IDEA OF WILBUR

commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, on its winter maneuvers, laid stress on the weakness of the fleet organization in these particulars:

Counts Cites Weakness.

The admiral called attention to the fact that the fleet lacked light cruisers in sufficient number, destroyer leaders and fleet submarines of a size, capacity and durability to operate as units of the fighting fleet.

The Washington conference could not arrive at an agreement to extend the capital ship 5-5-3 ratio to any of these craft.

Secretary Wilbur's suggestion that the United States might embark upon an auxiliary shipbuilding program, with the view in mind that the Washington government would be in a good position then to seek agreement among the naval powers for the extension of limiting treaties to other craft than battleships, battle cruisers and airplane carriers, also attracted attention in view of the recent statement by President Coolidge in New York, making a preliminary proposal for new discussions of limitation of armament.

No Definite Project

There was nothing to indicate, however, that Mr. Wilbur had any definite projects of the kind in mind when he made the statement. It was recalled that Washington officials have almost invariably held that the key to the situation, which resulted in the call for the Washington conference by President Harding, was the tremendous capital shipbuilding program upon which the United States was then engaged. If that program had been completed, the American navy would have been overwhelmingly greater in modern warcraft than any other. It has been said, and it was by sacrificing that program that the other naval powers were induced to join in the limiting agreement.

KING WOULD PROBE CONDITION OF NAVY.

The Enemy
of pretty teeth is film.
For beauty's sake, combat it

A new way of teeth cleaning brings many results, and millions now enjoy them.

Whiter teeth is one result which users see at once. It is something all folks desire. But those whiter teeth show how this method fights the teeth's great enemy. That enemy is film.

How film-coats injure teeth

Film is that viscous coat you feel—ever-present, ever-forming. Under old teeth cleaning methods, much of it clings and stays.

Soon it becomes discolored, forming dingy coats. Then teeth remain unsightly and unclean.

Film causes most tooth troubles. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Such troubles are almost universal among people who don't fight film.

There are now two ways to fight film, which research has discovered. One disintegrates the film, often at a touch. One removes it without harmful scouring.

Able authorities have proved these methods effective. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

The use has now spread the world over, largely by dental advice. Careful people of some 50 nations employ Pepsodent today.

What users see and feel

The use of Pepsodent quickly brings a new conception of what clean teeth mean.

It does more than fight film. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids. It multiplies the ptyalin in saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth.

These combined effects are most impressive. One cannot doubt their benefits.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

We promise you a revelation. Cut out coupon now.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

CHARGES OUTLINED AGAINST PHILLIPS

Washington, May 5.—Special Assistant Attorney General John J. Parker, of North Carolina, today outlined to the jury the charges obtained in the lumber frauds indictment against John L. Phillips, of Thomasville, Ga.; John Stephens, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Charles Phillips, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga.; Frank T. Sullivan, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Ernest C. Morse and Charles S. Shotwell, former officials of the war department. The case is on trial before Justice Ballou, criminal division No. 2, the district supreme court, and the government claims it lost about $1,500,000 through the sale of surplus lumber from army cantonments.

The lawyers for the defense, fourteen in number, are expected to disclose tomorrow the angles of the defense in opening statements following the conclusion of Mr. Parker's statement. They will not adopt the usual course of waiting until the government's evidence is concluded, it was stated.

Alleged Plan Outlined.

The plan of the alleged conspiracy as given by Mr. Parker, who with Assistant Attorneys General Ward and Borchardt is aiding United States Attorney Gordon in the prosecution, was that Phillips and Stephens would be appointed to sell the government lumber to the trade on a commission of 12 per cent; that they would not actually market the lumber themselves, but would turn it over to other wholesalers and brokers at a price less than its value in consideration of secret payments to Phillips and Stephens. Mr. Parker said the government expects to show that Phillips and Stephens secretly collected enormous sums on account of the sales for which they did not account to the United States.

The prosecutor said he would show that Sullivan "bribed" Shotwell, and that the conspirators secured the release of air service lumber badly needed by the government. For this lumber, he said, the government was paid $800,000. From its sale the alleged conspirators or some of them secured $850,000 of which $324,000, he asserted, was paid secretly to John L. Phillips. The lawyer cited an instance in which he said would be proved in which George M. Chambers, the government inspector, who has died since the filing of the indictment, knew that a prospective purchaser had been offered $27 per thousand for certain lumber, that he took the purchaser to Phillips, who sold the lumber at $18 and collected $7 per thousand for the government inspector.

Another Case.

In another case the prosecutor declared the evidence would show Phillips had an offer of $24,000 for a lot of lumber which he was willing to accept if a flat fee of $5,000 was paid to him, but the purchaser declined. Phillips then sold the lumber to the firm of Eitzen & Towne, Pensacola, Fla., who resold it to the $34,000 man. Phillips was paid $10,000 secretly in cash, the lawyer said, and the government received a settlement on the basis of only $24,000. A total of $600,000 was secured by Phillips, the jury was told, on the sale of government lumber for which the United States did not receive one cent.

Testimony of witnesses will be introduced tomorrow at the conclusion of the statement of counsel outlining the defense.

SCOPE OF LIQUOR EVIDENCE WIDENED

GOV. WALKER SPEAKS IN RABUN COUNTY

Clayton, Ga., May 5.—(Special.)—Governor Clifford M. Walker spoke here Sunday to the Sunday schools of Rabun county. The courthouse, where the address was made, was filled to its capacity, and many could not gain admission. He left at noon for Hiwassee.

After the address, the commencement ceremony for the Rabun Memorial institute was presided by Dr. J. Fred Eden, of Toccoa.

Appreciation of an Elgin Gift Watch will grow as Time Passes

COMMENCEMENT
Day! One of the outstanding days in the lives of young men and young women.

A day for gifts that will be treasured through the years with all the sentiment of the occasion on which they were received.

That is why so many people consider a fine watch such an appropriate gift at graduation time.

Through three generations Elgin Watches have gladdened the hearts of graduates. To many a grown man and woman the joy of school days is recalled by the inscription engraved on the inside of his or her watch case.

Truly, the appreciation of an Elgin Gift Watch grows with the passing of the years.

Your jeweler is ready to show you a complete assortment of Women's Wrist Watches for graduation or wedding gifts. Elgin Wrist Watches, cased in Gold, Jewel-set and Gold-filled, may be had at a wide range of prices.

Here are a few points to bear in mind in selecting a gift watch.

When selecting for a woman, remember that she no longer wants to sacrifice timekeeping accuracy for beauty. She wants both.

When selecting for a man, keep before you the fact that most men wish conservative but rich patterns—and sure time above everything.

In all instances, don't be swayed from a watch you know about to the watch of an unknown maker.

The investment is too important to yield on this point.

One way to be certain about your watch is to select from the Elgins at your Jeweler's.

Mrs. Palmer To Wed Mr. Lance At Home Ceremony Tuesday

Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard Spalding announce the engagement of their daughter, Mrs. Van Spalding Palmer, to Lucian Charles Lance, of Kenosha, Wis., the marriage to take place today at high noon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Spalding, on Springdale road, in Druid Hills, and will be witnessed by immediate relatives.

Mrs. Palmer, who is a very beautiful young woman, possessing charming personality, is a representative of aristocratic southern families. She is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Spalding, a granddaughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. A. T. Spalding, beloved pioneer residents of Atlanta, and is a niece of Mrs. Clarence May, Mrs. Louise Spalding Foster, William F. Spalding and John S. Spalding.

Mr. Lance is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew H. Lance, of Kenosha, Wis., and is well known in the social and business world. He is a member of several prominent clubs in Chicago and New York, and will introduce his bride to a wide circle of influential friends and relatives. His family owns the Simmons Bed company of Kenosha, and he comes of most distinguished lineage. His only brother is Gilbert Lance.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew H. Lance; his sisters, Mrs. J. P. Anderson, and Mrs. Gilbert Lance, of Kenosha, are in Atlanta for the marriage, which will be an interesting event of Tuesday.

Mr. Lance and his bride will make their home in Chicago.

Army Hostesses Entertain at Club On Monday

A social event of Monday was the theater party at which Mrs. Jarvis, wife of Colonel Melville S. Jarvis, of Fort McPherson, entertained.

After the matinee, tea was served at the Druid Hills Golf club. The lace covered table had for a centerpiece a silver basket filled with roses, sweetpeas and snapdragons, the Dresden shades predominating.

The guests included Mrs. David Shanks, Mrs. Benjamin Smith, Mrs. Russell, of Boston; Mrs. Haskell, Mrs. Edwards, Mrs. Williams, Miss Howard, Mrs. Matthews, Mrs. Kendrick, Mrs. Fountain, Mrs. Webber, Mrs. Cox, Mrs. Quinell and Mrs. Moor Falls.

Another prominent hostess of the army circles of Fort McPherson, who entertained on Monday, was Mrs. H. A. Parker, wife of Captain Parker, who had as her guests the members of her Mah Jong club.

Mrs. Parker entertained at the Druid Hills Golf club, and following the game the guests were seated for tea at a long table placed in the sun parlor of the club. The table was covered with a cloth of lace and Madeira embroidery and gracing the center was a large silver basket filled with purple lilacs and pink roses. Other appointments were silver candlesticks holding pink tapers and silver compotes filled with pink and lavender mints.

The guests included the members of the Mah Jong club, Mrs. Charles Humphrey, Mrs. Moor Falls, Mrs. Thomas Darrah, Mrs. Clarke Smith, Mrs. James Magee, Mrs. Jesse Gaston, Mrs. Crane and Mrs. George Hunter.

Miss Anderson Honors Sorority.

Miss Dorothy Anderson was hostess to the members of the Pi Epsilon sorority on Friday afternoon, May 2, at her lovely home in Peachtree Heights.

Throughout the reception rooms, a profusion of spring flowers and the sorority colors, blue and silver, were used in decorating.

Mrs. Anderson assisted her daughter in entertaining.

Those present were: Misses Dorothy Anderson, Nancy Strubling, Lenore Ellis, Marion Carlock, Sara Andrews, Elsie White, Caroline Ashton, Marjorie O'Neal, Clara McNary, Elizabeth McKinney, Avern Harper, Dorothy Perkins and Katherine Paxton.

Charming Bride of Today

Miss Marian Hutchinson Stearns, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Stearns, whose marriage to Edgar Wood Upton, Jr., will be an event of brilliance at 8:30 o'clock at All Saints' church, followed by an elaborate reception at the Piedmont Driving club.

Miss Hancock Is Complimented.

Miss La Fou Dancy entertained at a bridge-luncheon Saturday morning at 11 o'clock at her home on Euclid avenue in honor of Miss Charlotte Rebecca Hancock whose marriage to Cecil Robert Hall will be a brilliant social event of May.

The invited guests included: Miss

Hancock, Misses Gane Dreger, Dot Anderson, Julia Trent, Nancy Strubling, Alice Davis, Sophie Davis, Mrs. Charles F. Scarratt, Jr., Miss Margaret Hardy, Miss Eileen Bricker, Miss Caroline Montgomery, Miss Eva Moore, Miss Harriet O'Neill, Miss Nevada Anderson and Miss Marian Joy Harris.

Mrs. Carder Honors Visitors.

A pleasant party at the Atlanta Woman's club on Friday afternoon was the bridge-tee at which Mrs. William Carder entertained in honor of Mrs. T. A. Splan and other visitors.

The guest list included Mrs. T. A. Splan, Mrs. Arthur Creston, Mrs. G. A. Whittaker, Mrs. W. W. Bean, Mrs. Creston, Sr., Mrs. A. H. Martin, Mrs. T. J. Bishop, Mrs. W. C. McLendon and her guest, Mrs. Mullen, Mrs. Walter Daniels and her guest Mrs. Hull, Mrs. Mack Evans, Mrs. F. A. McAllister, Mrs. Comer Parsons, Mrs. C. G. Griggs, Mrs. Stark Hamilton and Mrs. Carder.

Church Women Will Meet.

The annual meeting of the South Atlanta district of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, will meet today and tomorrow at St. Paul's church, on Grant street. The meeting will open at 9:30. An interesting program has been arranged.

Miss Stearns and Edgar Upton, Jr., Honored by Mr. and Mrs. Grady

Preceding the wedding rehearsal of Miss Marion Stearns and Edgar Upton, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grady entertained the members of the wedding party Monday evening at an elaborate buffet supper at their home on Peachtree road.

The reception rooms were lovely in their decoration of azalea artistically arranged in bowls and vases placed on the mantels, bookcases and consoles.

The long square table in the dining room was overlaid with a handsome lace cover. Adorning the center was a large silver basket filled with flowers in the Dresden shades. Smaller silver baskets of these same blossoms were placed at either end. At intervals were silver candlesticks holding unshaded pink lighted tapers. Mrs. Grady received her guests wearing a gown of black satin trimmed in eren lace.

Miss Stearns wore an attractive gown of pink satin crepe with overdraperies of pink chiffon elaborately embroidered in pearls.

Miss Alice Stearns was gowned in powder blue chiffon combined with cream lace veiling pink satin.

Mrs. Harry Stearns, mother of the charming bride-elect, wore a handsome gown of white chiffon beaded in black and white crystals.

The guests included Miss Stearns, Mr. Upton, Misses Alice Stearns, Nell Sims, Henrietta Tupper, Blanche Wilkinson, of Hamilton, Ontario; Gladys Hill, of New Orleans; Josephine Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. White, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Gantt, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Black, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tompkins, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Stearns, William Crowell, Dr. Harry Vaughan, Dr. Henry McDonald, Harry Stearns, Jr., Henry Grady, Jr., Edgar Wood Upton, Sr., of Boston, Mass., and Tan Hall, of England.

Specially
Priced at $29.50

EACH model is so individually attractive, you will not be satisfied choosing one. You will decide to add several of these bewitching creations of summery frocks to your new wardrobe, from the designs and hues presented exclusively by Tuxedo.

Paris says frills and Tuxedo responds with this fascinating reproduction of an exclusive imported model, developed in heavy crepe de chine. The knife-plaited frill, the collar, cuffs and pockets are edged with silk ribbon in contrasting shades. Mother-of-pearl buttons trim the pockets.

Colors: White with navy edging, poudre blue with white, tan with navy, navy with tan, maize with white and all white.

Tuxedo's latest origination is this Grecian model of heavy crepe with a striking two-tone effect produced by the contrasting color of the side folds, collar, vestee and belt. Mother-of-pearl buttons and a cleverly introduced pocket with a dainty silk handkerchief add the finishing touches.

Colors: White with maize, white with peach, white with poudre blue, white with orchid and white with Nile.

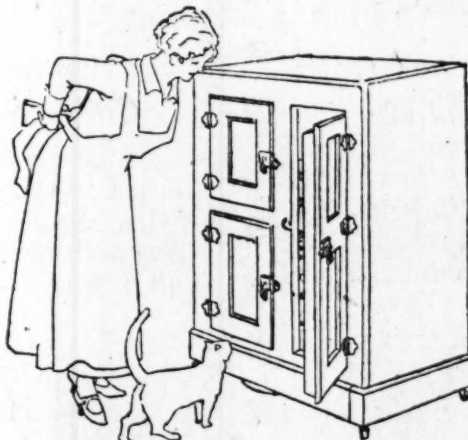

A novel design of flower printed crepe has a turn-back collar with a wide double tie flowing through hand-made button holes. A two-color combination brightly sets off the collar, sleeves, tie and pockets. Folds at the sides of the skirt give an extra stylish touch.

Colors: White with navy flowers, tan with rose, black with white, black with gray, navy with rose and cocoa with tan.

YOUR ice box may often be a treasure chest. There is hardly a day when it does not contain bits of cold meat, fish, vegetables or fruit—bits of food that should not and need not be wasted. They are just the thing for a salad.

A salad is the most appetizing way to bring food to your table the second time.

We have just published a little book containing numerous salad and salad dressing suggestions. A copy is yours if you will drop a postal to Wesson Oil, 206 Bay Street, Savannah, Ga., and tell us that you would like to have one.

Wesson Oil

Wesson Oil is a choice salad oil—light in color and most delicate in flavor. Use it in salad dressings, of course, but use it, also, for shortening and frying. You'll never know how good things can taste until you cook with a fat—like Wesson Oil—that is itself good-to-eat.

Miss Carmichael Weds Mr. Barnwell At Quiet Ceremony

An announcement of wide social interest throughout the state is that made by Mrs. J. R. Carmichael, of Jackson, Ga., of the marriage of her daughter, Miss Mary Frances Carmichael, to Ralph Barnwell, which was solemnized Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Carmichael, on Piedmont avenue. Dr. M. Ashby Jones, pastor of the Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist church, performed the ceremony.

The ceremony was a very quiet one owing to the recent death of the groom's mother, Mrs. Charles F. Barnwell, and was witnessed by the members of the immediate families of the bride and groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnwell will spend some time at the resorts of North Carolina and upon their return they will be at home at the Barnwell residence on Piedmont avenue.

Camp Fire Training Course.

The training course for camp fire leaders, open for registration. There is no charge for admission and an invitation is extended to all women of the city who are interested in girls' work in general or in the camp fire program in particular.

The first lecture will be on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at camp fire headquarters, 415 Chamber of Commerce building. At this time Dr. Mark Burroughs, of Oglethorpe university, who is an authority on psychology, will speak on "The Girl in Her Teens." Dr. Burroughs is a very interesting speaker and his lecture will stress certain psychological facts which are of the greatest importance in dealing with young people.

On May 9, Miss Mary Louise Wilson, executive secretary of camp fire, will discuss "The Scope and Aim of the Camp Fire Program," and Miss Mary Wellington will lecture on "Nature Lore." This promises to be a most worthwhile program.

The course which will run from May 7 to May 17, will not include lectures on each of the 10 days, but there will be lectures on May 7, 9, 10, 12, 14, 16, 17. The speakers on each occasion will be authorities in their particular fields. Miss Lucy Adams will speak on May 10 at 10 o'clock on "Recreational Activities." Miss Adams is physical director of the Young Women's Christian association work in Atlanta and has a wide background of experience in girls' work upon which to draw for the material of her lecture.

Following lectures will be on various lines of activities, dramatic, handicraft, out-of-door cooking and fundamentals of camp fire and the camp fire program.

Anyone interested in registering for the training course is asked to call camp fire headquarters, Walnut 2577. Registration is very important in order that proper seating capacity may be arranged. No obligation will be entailed by taking advantage of these lectures. Camp fire leaders are anxious to have as many take the course as possible, and welcome will be extended to all who come.

dress of white duchesse satin with rose point lace trimming. The gown was fashioned with square court train, falling gracefully from the shoulders. Her bridal veil of tulle was worn with coronet of lace held in place with orange blossoms, and she carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses, showered with lilies of the valley.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride on Indian River drive.

After a wedding trip to Asheville, N. C., Mr. and Mrs. Arnold will reside in Vero, Fla., the present home of the groom.

Luncheons at Washington Seminary.

The Domestic Science class of the Washington seminary gave the first of a series of luncheons on Tuesday, April 29, at 2 o'clock.

The color scheme of red and white was beautifully expressed in the centerpiece of red and white roses. These colors were repeated in the fruit cocktail, in the salad, dessert and mints.

Twelve guests enjoyed the delicious and attractive menu prepared by Misses Steazal, Mansfield, Hoyd, Armstrong, Wilson, Pierce and Body. Misses Armstrong and Body acted as maids.

At Friday's luncheon tall tulips of many hues graced the center of the table. Vases filled with bridal wreath and myrtles were used effectively in the decoration of the dining room.

The place cards were attached to the baskets holding the white and yellow mints. Yellow was the predominating color.

Twelve guests were invited to en-

The Rug in the car Soiled her dress

It was a new dress of the finest voile. Returning from the dance she had put the automobile rug over her knees. To her horror she discovered two ugly oil stains and a dusty smear across the front of her dress.

That's the way with auto rugs. It's hard to keep them away from the grease and oil in a car. They get stepped upon, and they're bound to get laden with the dust of the road.

A thorough and regular dry cleaning is the only way to keep automobile rugs in nice condition.

Whether your auto rugs are of fur, plush, wool, jaeger or other texture makes no difference—we will clean them by the best process and return them to you soft, sweet and dirt-free. We pay return postage.

ATLANTA FEDERATION LEADERS WILL MEET TUESDAY MORNING

Mrs. Stevens Calls Meeting Today
At Home of Mrs. Arthur Harris

Presidents of all clubs belonging to the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, and all chairmen appointed on the federation's executive board, with the officers of the organization are called by Mrs. T. T. Stevens, president of the Atlanta Federation, to meet this morning at the home of Mrs. Arthur Harris, recording secretary, at 10:30 o'clock. This is the annual May board meeting, and is one of the most important sessions of the year. Business will occupy the morning, and will be followed by a buffet luncheon given by Mrs. Harris in honor of Mrs. T. T. Stevens and the board.

Mrs. Harris will entertain during both the business session and at luncheon at her beautiful home, 1115 Ponce de Leon avenue. The occasion will be important both from the standpoint of the club business to be transacted at the morning session and from the social side which will add great pleasure to the luncheon, at which Mrs. Archibald P. Brantley, president of the state federation, will be an honor guest.

Preparatory to Ceremonies.

The meeting is preparatory to the ceremonies with which Atlanta federation will mark the formal dedication of the fine stone shelter for the car stop in front of United States hotel.

No Trouble to Keep Skin Free from Hairs

(The Modern Beauty)
There is no need for any woman to countenance superfluous hairs, because with a paste made by mixing some powdered delatone with water it is easy to get rid of them. Mix fresh as wanted. The paste is applied for about 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed.

See that you get real delatone. Ask for it in the original package and accept no substitute.—(adv.)

Gives Credit to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Hopes Other Women Will Benefit
by Her Experience

Skowhegan, Maine.—"I was sick most of the time and could not get around to do my work without being all tired out. I would have to lie down. One day when I was reading the paper I saw the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertisement and saw what it did for other women, so I thought I would try it. I have taken three bottles, and cannot begin to tell you what it has already done for me. I do all my work now and keep up the whole day long without lying down. I have no more headaches nor tired feelings. I hope every woman who takes the Vegetable Compound will get as much benefit out of it as I have."—Mrs. Percy W. Richardson, R.F.D. No. 2, Skowhegan, Maine.

You have just read how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped Mrs. Richardson. She gave it a trial after she saw what it had done for other women. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been doing good.

Splendid Shape"
Now.

Rutherfordton, N. C.—"I have lived in this vicinity all of my life," says A. S. Jackson, a well-known resident of this place, "and for about twenty years out of my thirty-eight I have used Theodor's Black-Draught.

"I used it mostly in the spring when we have what is commonly called spring fever. I would get up mornings and my joints would ache. I would feel sore. I would feel sleepy and stupid. I didn't feel like I wanted to work. I found after this feeling and a dull headache, that it was caused from an inactive liver.

"I heard of Black-Draught and how highly it was recommended. It certainly did me a world of good. So now I keep it in the house all the time. I use it each spring and it keeps me in splendid shape."

Pains in your joints and muscles are often the result of poisons which have been absorbed into the system instead of being carried off in a natural manner. These waste products cause a great deal of trouble to many people, and much relief has been found, in many cases, by seeing to it that the bowels act regularly and freely every day. Theodor's Black-Draught should be taken as often as necessary to open the bowels and put them in a healthy state of daily activity.

One Year To Live

BY JOHN HUNTER

"So, so," he said. "But what would you do? It is not all of us who realize our gifts." Lolette did not appreciate the irony of this.

"Gifts, you say? You would call a characterless face and smirking confidence gifts? Listen, mon ami! I am tired of that one. Understand? She affronts me."

Mordac understood that very well; he had understood it long.

"She shall learn," Lolette warned by the champagne, was speaking eagerly. "She shall learn. She shall discover that there are—what says that poet?—more things in heaven and earth than she dreams of. She shall learn. I shall arrange it—I, Lolette. That she should be insolent dumbly to me! She! I will teach her!"

Mordac's lips had lost their smile, and he was very earnest. "You mean that you would?" he began, and left the sentence significantly unfinished.

"I shall teach her," repeated Lolette.

Mordac's lips pursed. He watched Lolette quietly, slyly. "How?" he asked.

Lolette laughed. She was mightily mysterious. She finished her champagne.

Mordac is a man through whose hands pass many girls, girls who wish to get on, and make for themselves a name—like me. That is all. I have an idea. I shall teach her."

And Mordac, sitting back, watching the smoke wreath lazily upwards from the top of his flat cigarette, had been so inexplicably silent in the moment. He took up his champagne cup and twisted its stem in his white fingers. Brunel—Well, there were others, beside Brunel, to whom Elise's beauty appealed so strongly.

He smiled across at Lolette and remarked on the heat.

CHAPTER V.

For a fortnight Elise waited for the dismissal she deemed inevitable, and for a fortnight Lolette watched her slyly, her yellow eyes aglow. In that time Elise found something freshly sinister about her mistress. Lolette's reviling ceased. No longer was she still, piercingly silent at the moment of her French tongue is peculiarly capable.

Lolette was quiet. She spoke softly. She said "please" and "thank you." Once she used the word "cherie." It was the first time that there were no delicate shades of subtlety in Lolette's nature. She was not as Mordac, finding the easy, smooth way through life, avoiding the corners and the hills with facile elusiveness. She was mentally the same as her outward appearance, all flaring color, extremes of light and shade, and when she wished to be cunning with Elise she tried it.

For in her quietness and her newfound politeness Elise read a threat unutterable. To her strained imagination it was as though some deadly creature drew back, breathless, watching, able to pounce and destroy at any moment, but wishing of prolonging the sport to the ultimate scene.

It was, perhaps, a small matter, this losing of her position; yet Elise magnified it to the crisis of her life, and found an innate, inexplicable justification for doing so. She may have been clairvoyant in those days, as people are sometimes when they stand on the brink of mighty change, on the horizon of her life the clouds were gathering. She could feel the net of circumstances closing about her, and yet could point to no tangible indication of its presence. She was gripped fast in the fingers of destiny, and must go whither those fingers placed her. So she trod forward, afraid, shivering, waiting, understanding within herself that she had but to leave the theater, to get away from Lolette, to escape that which was threatening her, and knowing that it was Lolette, for her to take the step. She must go on—she must meet whatever fate held in store for her.

She stayed much with her sister, Marthe, in those days, in their little room high above the Rue Jacques, within a stone's throw of Sacre Coeur. It was a long, room, with a narrow section curtained off. In this section were two beds, and on one of them Marthe lay chained and a prisoner.

They were much alike, these two sisters, and yet between them was all the difference in the world. In Marthe, Elise's junior by two years, was reflected Elise's hair, black and fine, and her regularity of stature. Elise's blue eyes; but the blackness of the hair was dull, the face was worn and drawn and white, and the eyes were dimmed and torn with suffering and longing. Marthe was not beautiful like Elise, for Marthe had lain on her back through three long years of patient suffering, while Elise battled for and Dr. Lapierre tended her.

One night Elise found Marthe lying awake when she returned from the theater, and she lifted her frail, thin hand as Elise entered the room.

"Hello, Elise." There was a little excitement in Marthe's voice which drew from Elise a quick, inquiring look. "I have had company this evening. Doctor came in to talk to me."

"Who else?" He thought I might be lonely, so he dropped in."

"I see." Elise removed her hat and took off her jacket. Marthe lay and watched her for a space silent. Then she said suddenly: "Elise! Did you know the doctor loves you?"

Elise dropped her jacket. She was rapt from thought to forehead. Marthe nodded eagerly and went on. "He told me so tonight. It was like a bit out of those stories you read to me—just that. He was speaking the truth, I knew that. Do you think you would marry him, Elise?"

"He was joking," said Elise, lamely; still red. It was the thought, unfair of Lapierre to choose this method of furthering his suit.

"He wasn't," Marthe's eyes were wide and unnaturally bright. "He meant it. He was speaking the truth, I knew that. Do you think you would marry him, Elise?"

Elise shook her head. "He is joking," she repeated. "Why should he wish to marry me? And now, look! You have excited yourself and you will feel ill tomorrow. You must rest and get to sleep."

Marthe was disappointed and lay watching Elise as she undressed and until she got into bed, leaving alight the little lamp which always burned by Marthe's head all through the night. Elise was snuggling down between the sheets when Marthe touched her timidly.

"Elise! I can't sleep. My head is all whirling—like wheels. Tell me a story, one of your own, about love." So Elise sat up, with her hair tumbled gloriously about the whiteness of her shoulders and told a story of a pitiful, almost incoherent stringing together of romantic incidents, with always the beau chevalier and the beautiful maiden dominating it; while Marthe lay back and listened, and saw dream castles lifting on the wall at the foot of the bed.

When Elise had finished, Marthe said sleepily: "You tell me these stories of love, Elise, and yet when I come to you, you push me by."

Elise, still with the memory of the golden youth she had tried to paint for Marthe's benefit, had a quick vision of Lapierre's face, his age, his rounded shoulders, of Brunel, as he had gripped her arm that night; of Mordac's deep eyes smiling at her around the silver brush outthrust in his slim hand.

"Ah—love!" she said bitterly. And though their beds were so close together Marthe did not hear her crying.

Sometimes in those days, Lolette talked to Elise in a half-friendly, half-patronizing way, with a little undercurrent of cold sneering beneath it, which, try as she would, she could not altogether eliminate.

It was after a matinee, and Elise was kneeling at Lolette's feet, putting on the dancer's walking shoes.

"I understand from Heloise that you dance. Is it true?"

"It is nothing, madame. Sometimes they have persuaded me to—to try." She hardly knew how to express it. Heloise tells me that you are good at it—that you have danced some of my dances up here in the dressing room. Is that so?"

Elise wondered why old Heloise should babble so, and wondered how long Lolette had known that sometimes, to amuse the others, she had imitated Lolette while Lolette was on the stage and the echoes of her dance music reached up from the orchestra.

She made frank confession. "I don't think I am good, madame; but I have always loved dancing."

"So?" There was a note of mingled menace and triumph in Lolette's purring voice. "And you imitate me, eh? Well, it is a very flattery, that. Is that shoe fastened?"

"Yes, madame."

Lolette got up and walked out, leaving Elise kneeling on the floor.

Sometimes in those days, also, Elise saw Doctor Lapierre and more than once he commented on her growing paleness.

"I have warned you," he said. "There is a breakdown coming unless you do something to stop it. Won't you listen to me?"

And always she told him that she must go on.

CHAPTER VI.

At the end of a fortnight love came to Elise.

It was a hot evening in May, one of those warm, seductive nights with which spring sometimes endows us and summer forgets to dispense. The theater was crowded, for Paris was filled with visitors, people from all over the world, and the neighboring European countries, with a great sprinkling of Americans.

On the boulevards and in the opera was a scene of crowded gaiety, bright lights, bright eyes, jewels, sleek, shining cars, thronged cafes—all under an atmosphere of life and happiness.

Mordac brought a visitor to the gorgeous dressing room of Lolette. He was a young American named Tom Kendrick, acquainted with Mordac, apparently, because of some business deal which had brought him from New York.

He was about 30, with a tanned face, irregular in feature, but hard and strong; his hardness relieved and almost negated by a sensitive mouth about which a smile always lurked as though in hiding. He carried his dress clothes with the easy grace of an athlete, and his hands looked capable and workmanlike. His hair, straight and a little dull, was brown as were his wide-set eyes. It was his eyes which told Elise of the difference in him, why he was not like the men who usually came to see Lolette. For when he entered he looked at Elise, and in his glance was no appraisal.

It was a very straight glance, boyish, almost, and friendly, with a smile in it. Mordac introduced him to Lolette, and Elise heard his name.

She studied him covertly while he was there. He spoke very little, and then quietly, and watching him, Elise conceived that he would have been more at home on a playing field than in the dressing room of a dancer, not that he was gauche or blundering, but he was obviously not in his true environment; which, somehow, pleased Elise.

He went at last with Mordac, and gave a courteous good night to everybody in the room—Lolette and her dressers. Elise took home with her that night a glorified picture of him in her memory. He was, she decided, not the kind of man who should visit Lolette. The story she told Marthe before they went to sleep had him for its hero.

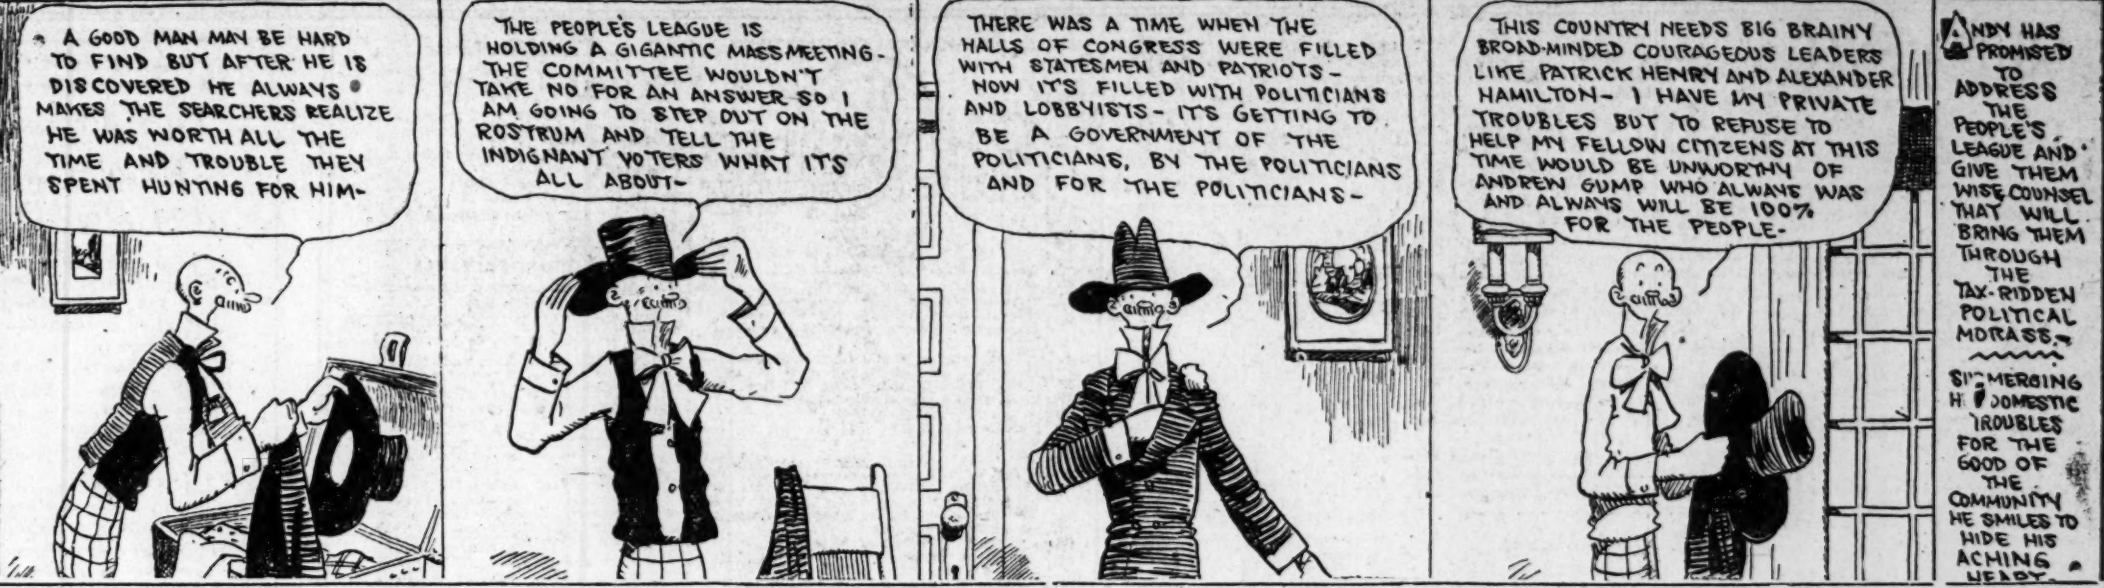

Two evenings later he came again, and as he and Mordac arrived while Lolette was showing they decided to wait until the dancer came up from the stage. Elise was busy with the things on the dressing table, and Kendrick spoke to her. There was not an atom of affront or familiarity in his manner, and they chatted for a little while until Mordac broke in and distracted Kendrick's attention.

From then on each time he came to the dressing room, which he did with frequency, Kendrick found an opportunity of talking to Elise. From the first there seemed a bond of understanding between them, and the days went by as Elise found herself telling Kendrick about Marthe and everything else connected with her life outside the theater, while he listened intently, injecting occasional observations which drew from her more and more information concerning herself.

Once Lolette came into the room while they were chatting—it was the first intimation the dancer had of their friendship. She checked in the doorway, a hardly perceptible hesitation, and the old baleful light flared and died in the glance of furious astonishment she directed at Elise. Kendrick had turned to her as she entered, and it seemed impossible that he could have omitted to see that look. For the rest of the time until he took his departure he watched Lolette and Elise with unobtrusive curiosity.

With each visit Elise looked forward more and more to the next, and

THE GUMPS—LEAD ON, MACGUMP!

It was not until afterwards—when everything which was ordained was done past recall—that she realized exactly what Kendrick had come to mean to her during those hot, close evenings when Paris made merry under the stars. She might have been conscious that she was drifting towards a crisis, but if so she ignored it, reaching out desperately towards those meetings with Kendrick and heeding nothing else.

She saw Dr. Lapierre each day, but of him thought not at all; while he became more and more occupied with himself and his thoughts.

CHAPTER VII.

Brunel gave a great garden party, a bal masque, in the grounds of his beautiful house behind the Champs Elysees. This bal masque was an institution in the Parisian theatrical world, and an evidence of the largeness of Brunel's complex character. It opened always at one o'clock in the morning, after the theaters were closed, and continued until pale dawn lifted light across the eastern horizon. To it went everybody and anybody connected with the theater. Like the Quetz Art ball, exclusively attended by the artistic profession and yet open to all who graced the profession, this bal masque of Brunel's was for those of the theater. They all went—from the highest to the lowest—the most brilliant star in the Parisian firmament rubbed shoulders with the humblest figurant during those few hours of hectic gaiety. Brunel held open house that night, and there were those who declared that it was more valuable to him than many thousands of francs' worth of ordinary advertisement.

"Daddies." (At the Howard.)

David Belasco's famous stage success, "Daddies," opened at the Howard yesterday and was received with acclaim. Harry Myers and Mae Marsh and many other favorites of the screen are seen in the roles of their best. "Daddies" is a delightful story of bachelor life and the surprising results when five bachelors adopt war orphans and become fathers by law. A pleasing little love story is interwoven in the lives of all the bachelors and each one forsakes his bachelorhood for marriage bliss.

Vincent Lopez's junior orchestra scored a knockout at all performances yesterday. The boys are even better than the advance boys in the roles at play. The very latest selections and play them with a vim.

The comedy is "The Broncho Express," featuring Clyde Cook.

Mr. Rinsinger's overture is in keeping with National Music week, being "East, West, North and South."

"Three Weeks." (At the Metropolitan.)

Atlanta's greatest appreciation Monday in capacity audiences at the Metropolitan theater for the screening of Eleanor Glyn's famous novel, "Three Weeks."

A Vivid Drama of Frisco Life

(and that includes almost everyone) they found in the pictureization a close portrayal of the original work. The many thrilling incidents that made the story a sensation have been truthfully transferred to the screen, and in doing so, have not been permitted to lose any of that dramatic force or mightily appeal the word-picture presents.

Conrad Nagel is seen in the leading role, while playing opposite him is Adeline Pringle. These two, assisted by a powerful supporting cast are splendid in their work.

All the splendor of European royalty forms the background for the story—a story teeming with adventure, love and romance. Venetian nights, breathing love—secret canals, their dangers are brought to the very door of American theaters in this splendid picture.

A special musical program is offered in connection with the picture presentation by Enrico Leide and his brilliant orchestra.

"Restless Wives." (At the Rialto.)

Elaborate settings form a sumptuous background for the splendid story of "Restless Wives," the startling picture that holds a real interest for everyone with modern day ideas, showing at the Rialto theater this week.

It is a story of modernism, of a restless age, when young wives are tempted by the glamor and times outside the home, and sometimes wander out of their beaten path.

Many emotional qualities are factored in the story that is filled with romance and adventure. An excellent cast does full justice to the opportunity for dramatic acting afforded.

In addition to this fine picture, the Rialto this week also is offering an Atlanta-made picture, "The Reporter," in which are shown many familiar faces and scenes.

It is a comedy thriller, having been made on Atlanta streets for the past several weeks, and jammed full of laughs.

At the Paramount.

(For Colored Only.)

Lon Chaney has been given many opportunities to prove that he really is a great actor, but never has been given as emotionally sympathetic a role as we find him handling in "The Shock," which is now showing at the Paramount theater last time today.

CONTAGIOUS GIGGLE OF YOUNG ACTRESS CATCHES FLAPPERS

Every little flapper in town will soon be laughing like Flora Gade, for her little giggle was one of the outstanding features of the production of "Broadway Jones," given by the Baldwin Players at the Atlanta Monday night.

The play, a typical Cohan show, gives several opportunities for the members of the stock company, which, in this, its third week, is safely entrenched in the good favors of local theatergoers. John Little, the ever popular, John Little again, so long as he remains himself he is always sure of tons of admiration from his countless friends in his audiences.

Romaine Callender, remembered for his earlier engagements in local stock, makes his initial bow this week with the new organization. He received an ovation Monday night and a basket of flowers. Frankly, Mr. Callender gave one of the best individual performances of the evening, too. Itha Dickey, in her third role, has something totally different again. She made the local audience as convincing as is possible for a lady who is really as delightful as Miss Dickey in real life.

Al Roberts has an oddity for his role, for you must see him believe. And, to cap the climax of the play, in the last act Walter Baldwin himself appears for a little while.

It is entertainment of a type all the more enjoyable, because who reforms and casually turns down a couple of millions of unethical money. The business of his ancestors, a grand old trade name, must be saved. To fight the unscrupulous trust. The
